TRIUMPH OF COOLIDGE IS AUGMENTED GREATLY WITH RECEIPT OF LATE RETURNS

President Will Have 379 Votes In Electoral College As Against 139 For Davis And 13 For La Follette; Wisconsin Is Only State Carried By "Fighting Bob"

(Reuter's American Service)

New York, November 5.—The unofficial final figures are as follows:—

President Coolidge	379
Ex-Ambassador Davis	139
Senator La Follette	13

Coolidge Certain Of 357 Votes

BY J. J. UNDERWOOD
(Special Cable to THE CHINA PRESS)

Washington, Nov. 5.—President Calvin Coolidge is certain of at least 357 out of the total of 531 votes in the electoral college, thereby assuring his election to the Presidency by a big majority over Senator Robert M. La Follette and John W. Davis.

Senator La Follette, on the basis of returns received so far, has carried only his home state of Winconsin.

The states of Arizona, Minnesota, Montana, Nevada, New Mexico and North Dakota are still listed in the doubtful column.

A Republican majority has been elected for the House of Representatives, but the make-up of the Senate is doubtful.

Coolidge 343; Davis 136

(Reuter's American Service)

New York, Nov. 5.—The latest official re-count credits President Coolidge with 343 electoral votes, ex-Ambassador Davis with 136 and Senator La Follette with 13.

Coolidge Given Immense Majority

(Reuter's American Service)

New York, Nov. 5.—The American Electorate yesterday gave the world another Conservative victory. Although the ballots for all the States have not yet been counted, Mr. Coolidge is elected President and General Dawes Vice-President, by an immense majority. The votes cast for Mr. Davis and Senator La Follette did not reach anything like the expectations of the Democratic and Progressive leaders.

The latest returns show that Senator La Follette is a bad third.

President Coolidge's victory in the East and Middle West, and also in some of the States of the Far West, was overwhelming. Mr. Davis apparently won only the "solid South", which is always Democratic, while Senator La Follette apparently was only able to win in his home State of Wisconsin.

Up to the present there is no indication that the Ku Klux Klan anywhere cut any figure.

La Follette Takes Only Wisconsin

(BY UNITED PRESS)

New York, Nov. 5.—Senator Robert M. La Follette, Progressive candidate for the Presidency, has apparently carried only Wisconsin.

John W. Davis, the Democratic nominee, carried Alabama, Arkansas, Florida, Georgia, Kentucky, Louisiana, Mississippi, North Carolina, South Carolina, Texas and Virginia.

Returns received so far indicate strongly that President Coolidge has carried all other states and has been elected by a good majority.

It is also indicated that there will be a stronger Republican majority in the next Congress.

SON OF VICTIM FOILS ATTEMPT AT EXTORTION

"Self-Governing Army" Raids Home Of Former Magistrate

Styling themselves the "Self-Governing Army of Shanghai," a band of men are endeavoring, ineffectually so far, to extort $50,000 from Tseu Pan-hung, a former Chinese magistrate who now resides at No. 4 North Honan Road, under threats of extreme violence if their demands are not met.

The first intimation that he had been chosen as an intended victim by the "self-governing army" was received by the former magistrate Wednesday morning when six men, one of whom was armed with a pistol, made their appearance at the back door of his home.

While three of the men remained on guard downstairs, the other three ascended to an upstairs roof occupied by the former magistrate and presented their demand in the name of the "self-governing army."

A servant in the household overheard the threats, and, unnoticed by the invaders, ran to an upstairs room occupied by the son of the magistrate, whom he notified of his father's predicament. The son got busy immediately, and, in order to give the alarm, threw a number of loose bricks into the street. When a police whistle was heard, the six men fled, without taking anything or injuring anyone, escaping down Elgin Road.

Later, a threatening letter, also signed by the "self-governing army," was found in the back yard of the former magistrate's home.

Police of the West Hongkew Station are investigating, and in the meantime a guard has been detailed to the home of the intended victim.

CONGRESSIONAL OUTLOOK IN U.S. STILL DOUBTFUL

Republican Gains May Not Be Sufficient To Give Them Working Majority

(Reuter's American Service)

New York, Nov. 5.—Receipt of the election returns from 346 out of 435 congressional districts and 19 out of 34 senatorial contests leaves it uncertain whether the landslide in favor of President Coolidge will carry with it sufficient Republican gains in the two houses to give the President a full working majority in Congress.

With 183 Republican and 163 Democrat congressmen elected, the turnover has only been 12 in favor of the Republicans, or 5 less than would normally enable the representatives of the majority to control the opposition supported by Senator La Follette.

NEWSPAPER LIBEL CASE IN MIXED COURT IS SETTLED

Bench Thanks Counsel For Bringing Matter To Happy End

The civil libel case brought by Sub-Inspector Thomas Dunne of the municipal police against the managing directors and chief editors of the Eastern Times, the Shanghai Tribune and the Journal of Commerce was amicably settled yesterday when the case came up for hearing in the Mixed Court before British Assessor Martin and Magistrate Li.

Mr. Reader Harris, representing the plaintiff, informed the court that the case had been settled outside the court through the co-operation of his friends, Messrs. A. Covey and A. M. Preston, counsel for defendants. The court expressed appreciation for the work of the counsel in affecting a settlement and ordered the case struck out of the calendar.

Yesterday's proceedings ended one of the most sensational libel cases in the history of journalistic enterprise in Shanghai. Three of the best known papers were envolved for publishing comments on a case, in which the plaintiff was alleged to have struck a coolie employed by the police who died later in hospital. Kidney disease was the cause of the death, according to medical experts.

The defendants were at first prosecuted criminally by the police. Only the editor of the Journal of Commerce was found guilty and fined $99.

Foreign Chambers Here Urge Diplomatic Corps To Protest On Arsenal

Representatives of all foreign Chambers of Commerce in Shanghai at a meeting held in the offices of the General Chamber on October 30 unanimously passed a resolution which has been forwarded to the Diplomatic Corps in Peking for transmission to the home governments calling attention to the anger of permitting the Kiangnan Arsenal and the Lunghua Powder Factory to remain at Shanghai. The resolution which asks the Diplomatic Corps to urge upon the Chinese Government the desirability of dismantling the Woosung Forts and removing the arsenal and powder factory, is as follows:

"Whereas the presence of the Kiangnan Arsenal and Lunghua Powder Factory in the vicinity of Shanghai is the immediate cause of hostilities which have inflicted enormous injury on the vast commercial interests, both foreign and Chinese, which are centered in Shanghai, it is hereby resolved that the attention of the Diplomatic Body be drawn to the grave danger of permitting military establishments to exist at or near a great commercial center such as Shanghai, and that the Diplomatic Body be requested to urge upon the Chinese Government the desirability of immediately dismantling the Woosung Forts and removing the Kiangnan Arsenal and Lunghua Powder Factory to some other locality remote from commercial centers and more suitable for military establishments."

Extraterritoriality Issue Raised By Dr. Sze

(BY UNITED PRESS)

Geneva, Nov. 5.—Simultaneously with the opening of the league of nations opium conference here, the International Anti-Opium Association has informed the League that acting in co-operation with the Narcotic Drug Department of the League, it has discovered evidence of a considerable traffic in drugs through Tsingtao.

It is alleged that Japanese manufacturers are shipping heroin and cocaine through Tsingtao into China. Chinese and other nationals, it is claimed, are also using Tsingtao and other China coast ports for the distribution of narcotics.

On a motion made by the delegates of Japan, China and India, the conference agreed that its meetings be made public.

The present conference is seeking to regulate opium growing and traffic in opium-smoking countries through the adoption of co-operative measures aimed at elimination of illicit traffic in drugs.

The conference which will meet here on November 1st, will deal with the question of limiting the manufacture of opium derivatives to actual medical and scientific needs.

Mr. Edwin Neville of the State Department of the United States is attending the conference in capacity of unofficial observer.

370 RUSSIANS SENT TO SERBIA AND OTHER PLACES

Cabinet Committee Unable To Decide On Question Of Authenticity

Through the arrangements made by the International Committee for the Assistance and Repatriation of Russian Refugees, 370 Russians, including 300 cadets with teachers and 70 refugees, left Shanghai yesterday per s.s. Porthos for Spolato, Serbia, and some of them for other countries, namely: France, Italy, Poland, Germany, etc.

All cadets and teachers with their families who agreed to leave for Serbia have been sent to this country, where as arranged with the Sergian Government, the boys will be placed in schools. The refugees who have been sent per same steamer are going to countries where they have relatives or some connections and can hope to get some means for living.

The cadets problem has been thus solved, and all proceeds of the lotteries will be applied now to refund the transportation cost advanced by the contractor of the lotteries, which amounts to about $52,000 and to the payment of the debts of the committee. When all these moneys are paid out the committee will be able to continue its task in repatriating the refugees.

A full report of the work done by the committee will appear shortly in the press.

The Committee for the period of its work succeeded in sending away from Shanghai about 1,000 refugees and cadets by means either entirely provided by the committee or with assistance from the same source, besides, the Committee has provided for the whole period of its work, i.e. one year and a half, an average of 500 persons with full keeping, clothing, lodging, medical assistance, etc.

The International Committee for Assistance and Repatriation of Russian Refugees, consists of Mr. Premet, chairman; Messrs. W. J. Findley, Lion, Ch. Metzler, Gordon Morriss, C. B. Perkins, Y. C. Woo, members; and Mr. N. M. Yakovleff, secretary.

10TH DIVISION IN KIANGWAN DEFIES ORDER OF CHENGJU

Refuses To Move To Kiangpei After Wire Is Cut

HOLDS CONFAB

Meeting Results In Adoption Of Strong Attitude

Kiangwan went through a day of great excitement yesterday when the 10th division, formerly under Lu Yung-hsiang, the Chekiang leader, refused to be sent to the Kiangpei district after a regiment was transferred there, on Wednesday. The 38th, 39th and 30th regiments are still in Kiangwan and yesterday adopted a somewhat defiant attitude.

Following the despatch of the 37th regiment on Wednesday, the telephone wire between Kiangwan and Chengju was suddenly cut. The soldiery at once became suspicious and yesterday rumors were afloat the regiment had been disarmed at Chinkiang.

A military conference was held yesterday at the Industrial Home, which is being used as the headquarters of the division and was attended by the new commander, Tsang Tsing-yen. After the conference the entire soldiery became heavily armed and unofficial reports indicate that no more forces will be sent to Kiangpei.

More than 70 cars are waiting alongside of the railway to ship them out of town, resulting in a general congestion of passenger and freight traffic and an atmosphere of the uttermost tension.

Chang Yung-ming, the Hupeh brigadier-general and his braves, are still in Shanghai despite the appeal of the local organisations for him to go back to Hupeh. His subordinates say that Chang proposes to stay here for the present even at the risk of being forced out of Lunghua by hostile troops.

An official communique issued by Marshal Chi Hsieh-yuan at Chengju states that Szechuen, Honan and Hupeh are despatching troops to attack Feng Yu-hsiang for his treacherous acts. Tuli Yang Sen of Szechuen has authorised General Lah- Hsin-huai to march upon Peking; Governor Li Chi-chen was sending a brigade under General Wang and Marshal Hsiao Yao-nan was sending the 25th division to the North.

Manchu House Forced To Sign New Agreement For Abolition Of Its Court

Imperial Allowances Are Cut From $4,000,000 To $500,000; Boy Emperor Is Refused Permission To Enter Legation Quarter

(BY UNITED PRESS)

Peking, Nov. 6.—Hsuan Tung, "Boy Emperor," has formally abdicated as Manchu Emperor and turned over the Imperial seals to the representatives of General Feng Yu-hsiang who yesterday forced the Manchu House to evacuate their palace in the Forbidden City.

It is understood that the Manchu House, under a new agreement forced upon them by General Feng, have given all of their real estate to the Government but retain possession of their private effects.

The Government has revoked the old agreements under which the Manchu House were granted an allowance of $4,000,000 but has agreed to give Hsuan Tung $500,000 yearly and to establish factories costing $2,000,000 in which destitute Manchus will be employed.

The "Boy Emperor," following the move executed by Feng Yu-hsiang, said that he was happy but now he intends to travel and enjoy life as a private citizen.

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Peking, Nov. 5.—The Manchu [illegible] to $500,000, a [illegible] being made that a certain household were completely surprised when they were informed that they must vacate the Imperial Palace by three o'clock this afternoon.

The representatives of the Republic demanded the Emperor's seals and imposed a new agreement providing for the abolition of his titles and court, which have hitherto been maintained on a restricted scale, also for the reduction of the imperial allowances [illegible] tain other sum be set aside for the establishment of factories in which the Manchu bannermen and other retainers shall be employed.

The agreement says that the ex-Emperor shall be free to live where he likes, but the Republic shall retain the responsibility of guarding him.

Inquiries on this point have elicited the information that he must reside where the Republic can exercise safe guardianship over him.

This afternoon the ex-Emperor Hsuan Tung wanted to enter the Legation Quarter but he was not allowed to do so.

The ex-Emperor has complied with all the requests in the face of force majeure.

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Peking, Nov. 6.—Questioned today regarding the statement in the local papers to the effect that the Palace coup yesterday nipped in the bud a Monarchist plot, Dr. C. T. Wang asserted that the Government knew nothing of such plot, and he personally had no knowledge of it.

The police this morning placarded the city with proclamations explaining the favorable treatment of the ex-Emperor and the reasons for revising the Palace Agreement, which is identical with that cabled by Reuter's Peking correspondent yesterday, with the addition that the Republic undertakes the continued maintenance of the Imperial Tombs.

Yesterday's coup is keenly criticised in Peking on the grounds that it was quite unnecessary to exercise such a display of force for terrorising the Manchus. The assertion that in the new Agreement the ex-Emperor is free to live where he likes, does not accord with the facts up to the present, for he is still virtually a prisoner, surrounded by numerous guards. He is unable to leave his new residence, to which his tutor, Mr. Johnston, is denied admittance.

'Let History Judge Feng,' Is Plea Of Dr. C.T. Wang

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Peking, Nov. 6.—Dr. C. T. Wang received 30 pressmen this morning and made the following statement:

"By returning to Peking in the early hours of October 23 with his men General Feng Yu-hsiang took the highest responsibility one could possibly assume towards his country in general and his immediate duties in particular. That it was an extraordinary measure need not be denied. Steps taken to prevent his armies from confronting sure and ignominious destruction, due to the lack of proper provision for food and supplies of all kinds must appropriately be left to the ample treatment of history. The facts cannot be distorted, but will always remain indelible.

"One cannot help expressing sympathy for Marshal Wu Pei-fu on account of his personal character but his policy of unifying the country by forceful means never commended itself to the good judgment of the people.

"In obedience to the dictates of our conscience, we have driven out of office a handful of corrupt persons. Following the procedure prescribed by the Constitution, we have organised a new administration, for the purpose of continuing to perform the duties of Government, pending the readjustment of National and Provincial affairs, with the advice and consent of the duly selected representatives of the people. In pursuing such a course we only secured and safeguarded certain inalienable rights of man.

FLAPPER OF 14 SLAYS BROTHER.

ANNA BOBAR

John Bobar, a 15-year-old Yonkers, N. Y., boy, was deeply religious. He stripped life of sin. When his daily task ended he sat down with his Bible to find that salvation held up to him by the priest of the little Russian Orthodox Church he attended. His sister Anna is only 14. When the boy saw her in cheap silk dresses, with silk stockings and with her lips deeply carmined, he thought it the brand of damnation. She even spent 15 cents for a magazine that displayed on its cover a bare-necked girl. He tore it from her as "an instrument of the devil." The poor Russian mother could not patch up the quarrel. The girl was cutting a loaf of bread when the brother repeated she was "bad" and that some day he would have to kill her. She thrust the bread knife through his heart.

Chrysanthemum Show

A most enthusiastic gathering assembled to inspect the Chrysanthemum Show held at the Club Rooms of the American Women's Club today. Many exquisite plants and single blooms were exhibited, with the result that the judges were severely tried in rendering impartial decisions in the awarding of prizes.

Mrs. G. B. Fryer was awarded First Prize for the Best Single Bloom, which was a huge white flower with exceptionally long slender petals. It was different from the usual tight chrysanthemum bloom. Mrs. Fryer also took second prize in the single blooms with a deep purple flower, the fingers of which were nigh well perfect.

The third prize in the Best Single Bloom competition went to St. Mary's School, being entered by Mrs. E. Harrison King.

For the best specimen of chrysanthemum plant, first prize taken by St. Mary's School, Mrs. King's entry; and second prize went to Mrs. J. Scott Emens.

Mrs. W. F. Fleming was awarded first prize for the two best Bush Plants.

The Best Six Plants' variety prize was awarded to Mrs. J. Scott Emens.

An unusual exhibit of plants in a Soochow Tub, which had been grown therein, without any drainage, was entered by Mrs. Gardner Crane, who took first prize in this class.

The public voted on the best bowl and basket, and separate prizes were awarded therefore. Mrs. Gardner Crane's entry, a gorgeous collection of red and gold spider chrysanthemums in a huge orange bowl of Bohemian glass, received the highest number of votes.

Dr. Anne Walter Fearn, President of the Club, presented the prizes, lovely pieces of cloisonne, brass bowls and porcelain vases, to the winners of the different contests.

So much enthusiasm and interest was displayed at this first effort of the Gardening Department of the American Women's Club, that it is hoped the Chrysanthemum Show will become an annual affair with the Club.

A lovely basket of exquisite orchid pink blooms was presented to Dr. Fearn as a tribute from the club.

Says Tientsin Is Drug Center

that the suppression of opium-smoking in Japan was absolute.

Prince Chtroon (Siam), the Vice-President, outlined the restrictive measures in Siam and expressed the hope that neighboring countries would assist in the gradual suppression of opium-smoking.

Sir Malcolm Heleyigne (Britain) drew attention to the smuggling which in the past three years had become worse in the Far East, particularly in Hongkong, where as much opium was imported illicitly as legally. He declared that the Malayan Peninsula was not so mad but asserted that there was considerable smuggling between the Far East and the Straits Settements.

This afternoon's sitting was occupied exclusively by a written statement by Dr. Sze, which led to a friendly passage of arms between the Chinese delegation and Sir J. Campbell (India).

The Chinese statement declared that China was suffering from the acts of individuals over whom she had no control owing to the obligation imposed on her to concede extraterritorial rights to nationals of certain Powers.

NO CO-OPERATION

Opium, Dr. Sze continued, was not indigenous to China but had been introduced from abroad. China's attempt to curtail smuggling had not met with co-operation from those Powers whose nationals engaged in the traffic. The production of opium in China had practically ceased in 1917 when Britain agreed that Indian opium was not to be exported to China.

No Power was more concerned than China in regard to the total suppression of the use of prepared opium. This result, the speaker affirmed, could not be hoped for without the whole-hearted co-operation of all Powers possessing territorial interests in the Far East.

The statement admitted, and regretted, the recrudescence of cultivation of poppy and the production and use of prepared opium in view of the temporary disturbed political conditions in China. The Chinese people were suffering owing to foreign grown opium being smuggled into China and also the large amount of foreign manufactured narcotics illegally introduced and sold in China.

Dr. Sze concluded by suggesting that the smoking of prepared opium should be declared harmful and therefore illegitimate; that the importation of opium except for medicinal or scientific purposes should be immediately forbidden; that the export likewise should be prohibited; that these undertakings should be applied to the colonies and dependencies of the agreeing Powers; and that the use of prepared opium should be forbidden excepting for addicts requiring special treatment.

INDIA'S REPLY

The Indian representative questioned the accuracy of several of the Chinese statements. He added that half the opium smuggled into Burma came from China and that the same occurred in Hongkong and the Straits Settlements.

Mr. Chu denied that he had ever admitted the accuracy of the International Anti-Opium Association's estimate of the annual production of opium in China, namely, 15,000 tons.

Malini Shows New Conjuring Tricks To Shanghai Pressmen

Newspapermen all over the world occasionally gather the idea that they are of keen intellect, something above the ordinary citizen.

Max Malini, conjurer, visiting Shanghai on his fourth trip around the world, disproved the idea last evening when he displayed his wares for the journalists of Shanghai.

He placed four 20 cent pieces in one reporter's hand. When the hand was opened it contained four coppers. He smashed his hand down on the spot where a glass tumbler was supposed to be—and within a few moments pulled the tumbler from under a servant boy's tunic.

Several card tricks, including the stabbing with a pocket knife of cards merely pecked at by the newspapermen while Malini was blindfolded completed the program.

The journalists were able to figure the tricks to the first degree. But several degrees remained.

Mr. Peyton-Griffin entertained in honor of Malini.

There were thirty cases altogether which included four teachers, and in view of the fact that the ailment was at first thought to be diptheria, considerable apprehension was felt in the American community. All of the serious cases which were taken to the Isolation Hospital for special treatment will be brought back to the school today. According to Prof. Boynton, the students who have been undergoing treatment in the school hospital have practically recovered.

Whereabouts Of Marshal Wu Are Still A Mystery

Although Marshal Wu Pei-fu with 2,500 troops is reported to have sailed from Tientsin on November 3, or three days ago, his whereabouts were still a mystery to the Kiangsu officials at Shanghai yesterday. One Kiangsu official stated to THE CHINA PRESS last night that "the reports regarding Marshal Wu Pei-fu's whereabouts are so contradictory, that no one here can tell where he has gone. We have no information regarding any conference that may take place between Marshal Wu and Marshal Chi Hsieh-yuan, which has been referred to in the newspapers."

It is generally thought, however, that Marshal Wu may land temporarily at Tsingtao and then proceed to the Yangtsze with the idea of going to Hankow, stopping enroute at Nanking for a conference with the Kiangsu military governor.

'Let History Judge Feng,' Is Plea Of Dr. C. T. Wang

earth in natural resources, the Government has been made insolvent for years by unscrupulous officials. It is also one of the oldest countries in ancient culture and civilisation, yet military Mandarin cliques for the past few years have done nothing but engineer private feuds, in order to promote their personal interests. The most elementary duties of public servants have been neglected by these men. Educational institutions have been cripped owing to lack of funds, while money has been diverted to create their personal armies. With small Government subsidies, industries could have been stimulated, and worthy schemes of national welfare achieved, but public revenues have been used to carry on the nefarious intrigues of the militarists, while civil servants in Peking have not been paid their salaries for periods of from three to thirty months, and the payments on foreign obligations have been repeatedly defaulted.

"Tens of thousands of people have been either killed or maimed every year in useless civil wars, while millions are suffering from hunger and all sorts of privations. Internal and international trade and commerce have been brought to a standstill. Foreign relations have been conducted with childish cleverness and gross negligence. What would the people of other nations do if placed in similar circumstances? Would they endure such intolerable conditions longer than we have done?

"There must be a limit to the endurance and toleration of any people.

RESPECT FOR TREATIES

"As Foreign Minister," continued Dr. Wang, "I wish to speak clearly. We shall live up to the letter and spirit of our Treaty engagements. In so doing we wish to remind friendly Powers that China has a right to her own existence. Any conditions derogatory to her right to exist as a free and independent nation must necessarily be rectified by mutual arrangement, as quickly as the exigency of circumstances requires. It is my bounden duty to promote a better understanding, and to develop greater confidence between the Chinese people and Government and the peoples and Government of friendly Powers. We are particularly conscious of our duty in collaboration with all neighboring friendly Powers to carry out the provisions of the Washington Conference, and thus ensure durable peace on the Pacific. For the attainment of that end, we must first stand on our own feet.

"In the name of my countrymen," he concluded, "I fervently invoke the assistance and cooperation of all our friends during this hour of need."

Dr. Wang, in answer to a question, said that he did not expect that the conference of China's leaders would meet for two months.

ARMED ROBBERS AT WORK; THREE RAIDS REPORTED

$200 In Jewelry And Money Is Stolen From Bean Shop In Yangtszepoo

Three more armed robberies appear on the police records for yesterday.

At 5:30 o'clock yesterday morning, three men, two of whom were armed with black pistols, raided a bean shop at No. 257 Thorburn Road and escaped with jewelry and money totalling $200 in value. The robbers spoke the Anhwei dialect. No shots were fired, and by the time the Yangtszepoo police had been notified the men had escaped.

Six men, three of whom had pistols, staged a robbery at a silversmith's shop at 175 East Seward Road, according to a report made to police of the Hongkew station. They broke open the cash-box in the shop, stole $47, and then escaped without firing a shot.

The third robbery was in the Harbin Road district. Three men, two of them armed with pistols, entered a pawnshop at 1353-4 East Kashing Road, and, after intimidating the two shop assistants, went behind the grill through a door which had been left open, and took money and jewelry worth $158. They escaped down an adjoining alleyway before the frightened shop assistants gave any alarm.

WHAT IS YOUR BABY'S WEIGHT?

If The Little One Is Not Gaining Properly There Is Help in Baby's Own Tablets.

One of the surest signs that a baby is making good progress is steady increase in weight. After the first week there should be regular and rapid growth if the baby is being properly nourished.

The most common cause of failure to gain weight is malnutrition, the food is either deficient in quality or quantity, or the digestive organs are not doing their work properly. When the stomach or bowels are at fault all that is necessary to set matters right is the administration of Baby's Own Tablets, the pleasant-tasting Canadian remedy for little ones of all ages. No fear need be entertained as to the wisdom of giving these Tablets, because they are guaranteed, under a Government Analyst's certificate, to contain not a single particle of opiate, narcotic, or other injurious drug, and to be equally helpful and harmless to the youngest infant as to the child of 8 years old or more.

Baby's Own Tablets are just the right remedy for infantile constipation, colic, indigestion, diarrhoea, simple fever, teething troubles and worms. They bring natural, restful health-promoting sleep, restore appetite and make the baby thrive. Of chemists, or post free 60 cents the vial, from the Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., 60 Kiangse Road, Shanghai.

France Drinks Cocktail But Bans It From Lexicon

Word has come from Paris that France will have none of that most popular of American drinks, the cocktail. Will have none of it, at least, if having it is going to necessitate the inclusion of the mongrel word in her national dictionary. For forty-six years the venerable members of the French Academy have been revising, expurgating and sorting over the first volume of revised edition of this carefully censored work. The volume containing letters A to H has just been placed in the hands of the printer.

It is still too early to guess what effect the beaming of the word "cocktail" by France's Forty Immortals will have upon the future of the internationally known beverage which bears that name. At least the distinguished savants whose job it is to protect the language of their country from contamination by words of mixed or confused origin have fixed attention anew upon this aromatic and essentially American drink.

ORIGIN OF THE WORD

Word authorities cannot vouch for the exact origin of the term cocktail, although there are enthusiastic partakers who claim to be able to tell. "A slang name of which the real origin appears to be lost," follows the word on the pages of the Oxford Dictionary. Webster defines it as "a short appetising drink made generally, of spirits mixed with bitters, sugar, aromatic flavoring and chopped ice," and appends recipes of the best-known brands.

Dr. Frank H. Vizetelly, managing editor of the New Standard Dictionary, in his book on idioms traces the cocktail back to the days of 1809, and quotes from Washington Irving's Knickerbocker History: "They (the Dutch-Americans) lay claim to be the first inventors of those recondite beverages, cocktail, stone fence and sherry cobbler." While Dr. Vizetelly said he could add nothing officially to this definition and history of the cocktail, he was inclined to think that the term was in some way traceable to the horse referred to in old English and Irish chronicles as "a cock-tail."

In early days hunters and stage coach horses whose tails were shortened were not, as a rule, thoroughbreds, and it was the custom of trainers and horsemen before exhibiting animals of this kind to give them a dose of ginger mixed with water or other invigorating concoction in order to stimulate their antics in the show ring. It is not unlikely, according to Dr. Vizetelly, that an aromatic mixture for general consumption grew out of this custom.

CENSURING THE LANGUAGE

When it was announced early this year that French Academy members were discussing sporting terms for inclusion in the national dictionary, word specialists foresaw a possible slackening of the once strict censorship. But those who know the tradition governing this august body were not optimistic about the letting down of the bars. It now develops that the pessimists were right, for to date the only sporting terms accepted are bookmaker, Boy Scout, bridge, camping, challenge, champion and cricket. The Academy has barred the words canter, crack and crawl.

The job of the Academicians has ever been to keep the language of their country pure and undefiled. They make few concessions to the spirit of the age. Long ago a wit said that the conservative Immortals refused to approve certain words until after they had passed out of usage. But this is not perhaps strictly true in view of the fact that the words "apache" and "blackball" have escaped banishment. To be sure, the old scholars worried many years over the "apache," that member of a Parisian gang of obscure and highly problematical ways. The word, coined by a reporter on the well-known French journal Le Figaro, was used for thirty years on the boulevards and streets of Paris before the cautious Academicians opened their minds and hearts to its dubious existence.

Concerned chiefly with the compilation of the national dictionary, the French Academy, since its founding in 1634 a Cardinal Richelieu, has brought out seven editions, dated 1694, 1718, 1740, 1762, 1811, 1835 and 1878.

ROTARIANS HEAR WHAT ROTARY IS DOING ABROAD

President Britton Resigns To Tour Round World For Six Months

The Rotary movement abroad formed the topic of interesting speeches delivered yesterday at the weekly meeting of the Shanghai Rotary Club at the Astor House by Mr. F. J. Raven, head of the Raven Trust company, Ltd., and Mr. George A. Fitch of the Y.M.C.A., who have just recently returned from the United States and Europe, attending Rotary meetings abroad.

President T. C. Britton attended the meeting yesterday for the last time before sailing for America and Europe on a round-the-world trip with Mrs. Britton for six months. In an inspiring address, he pointed out the value of friendship which he had formed with Rotary during the past five years when he was associated with the club.

Mr. Holgate, vice-president, in taking over the presidency from Mr. Britton, made an appropriate address in which he attributed the success of local Rotary to the retiring president.

Mr. W. J. Hawkings, formerly president of the club, was one of the guests and spoke on the plan to establish a Rotary Club in Hankow.

Mr. W. F. Fulstow sang several vocal soloes to the delight of the audience. He was accompanied by the club's own pianist, Mr. A. E. Hayes.

John Barrymore

WE present—

The insolent, the infinitely witty, the superbly handsome, most picturesque figure in the social history of England—

The man who went furthest in impressing his stamp on the sartorial styles and customs of his fellow men!

Beau Brummel!

Yes, the Beau who was dandy, arbiter of fashions, and wrecker of fair ladies' hearts.

He comes here in the screen adaptation of the famous Clyde Fitch play—the same play immortalized by Richard Mansfield.

John Barrymore, a superb figure himself, was chosen to play the title role in this splendid Warner Brothers' Classic of the Screen. He plays the role of the Beau who attracted attention by his insolence and held it by his scandal.

Don't miss seeing this impersonation of a great personality who insulted princes, had three hairdressers at one time to fix his hair, fought off the army of admiring women after bits of his heart, had the soles of his shoes polished, who became a dandy because of a broken heart.

Shanghai Chapter, D.A.R., Holds Initial Meeting

Members Are Guests Of Consul-General And Mrs. Cunningham At First Session Since Organisation

The Shanghai Chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution met yesterday for the first time since its organisation, at the residence of United States Consul-General and Mrs. E. S. Cunningham.

Seventeen American women, descendants of men and women who achieved American independence, were present at the meeting. The chair was taken by Mrs. Wilbur, who is acting regent, and who has just returned from America.

Mrs. Wilbur spoke on the aims and ideals of the D.A.R., and outlined its purpose as a patriotic educational society to foster true patriotism and love of country, and to carry forward through future generations the ideals and spirit of the men and women who were the founders of the American republic.

"The Shanghai branch of the D.A.R.," said Mrs. Wilbur, "is a branch of the National Society admitted by the National Board of Management in April, 1924. The Shanghai Chapter is not a club and may not affiliate with clubs."

Mrs. Wilbur discoursed on the work of some of the chapters at home, towards establishment of scholarships, national memorials etc. She said that Mr. G. C. Stockton, at the December meeting, would launch the program for the local chapter by outlining the colonisation of America. The chief aim of the local chapter will be Americanisation work. Prizes for historical essays will be awarded, a program of study will be devised and such other suitable objects as may present themselves from time to time will be dealt with. The Shanghai chapter further proposes preparation of members and children for exercising their franchise when possible.

After elaborating further on the great need for loyalty and patriotic devotion, Mrs. Wilbur closed her address.

Consul-General Edwin S. Cunningham then addressed the meeting and after welcoming the organisation to Shanghai spoke briefly to the group.

"Unfortunately, affairs in China lately have been in such a condition that I have had very little time to prepare a talk," he said, "I hope you will not think I am presuming in offering suggestions for your activities here to augment those you have already made yourselves.

"We have no monuments or memorials to erect or maintain here. However, the memory and spirit of the men and women who achieved American independence may be instilled into the minds of the American youth in China who, fortunately and unfortunately, have not all the privileges of those Americans born and educated in the United States.

"You have an object of primary importance, by instilling into the minds of the American youth in this country that spirit which regards and cherishes American colonial days, which in a vast understanding. The education of the youth in the encouragement of the study of American history, particularly of those days of self sacrifices, of loyalty and of far-sighted men, is of great importance to the maintenance of that loyalty, that patriotism, and that love for our country which should be inspired in the minds of all American children.

"More than that, I feel that the pursuit of the study of American history in colonial days would have a wonderful effect upon the future of this country if the youths of China were encouraged to study the lives of those men who formed the first Congress of the United States; who constituted the first convention which passed the Declaration of Independence, and who laid the foundation stone of the future Republic of the United States of America; and if the youths of China were encouraged to study the lives of Washington, Jefferson, Franklin, and Adams, and other representatives of colonial and earlier days for an intelligent interpretation, it would have a wonderful effect upon the future of the Chinese Republic.

A GREAT UNDERTAKING

"You will no doubt consider that your field of activity primarily is to assist in the encouragement of education for the American youth in China by developing love for his country through the study of American history, thus instilling into him that love of the principles of the American nation and the general spirit of nationalism in which the children should be interested.

"A complete and thorough understanding of American history by our children in China is exceedingly important and is a great undertaking. It is of even greater importance in this foreign country that this education should be along broader lines, with generosity to all and animosity to none, than it is in the United States.

"It has been my desire, too, during my foreign service to encourage the observation of all our national holidays, particularly Flag Day. You Daughters of the Revolution can be of vast assistance in this matter by contributing, in an appropriate manner to the observance of these days and by endeavoring to see that the children, so far as possible, participate in these undertakings.

"American children should be so instilled with American history that the activities of the Daughters of the American Revolution in acquiring and preserving historical spots in the United States will be a matter of interest which will attract the visits of the children when first they go to the homeland. Let them be fully informed with regard to the life of Israel Putnam and they will not fail to visit Greenwich and the famous Inn. Let them be familiar with Fort Pitt and there will be a personal interest in Block House."

Mr. Cunningham also suggested that the chapter obtain a complete list of the flags and shields of all the states, so that Americans here may become familiar with them. He closed with a reiteration of his welcome to the chapter, and expressed the pleasure of Mrs. Cunningham and himself for the privilege of entertaining the chapter, at its first official meeting, in their home.

United States Planning Air Trip Around Pacific

Air officers of the United States, not content with making the first flight around the world, are now planning an around-the-Pacific flight in connection with the visit of the United States fleet to the far east this coming spring, according to advices to Shanghai yesterday.

It is estimated the flight could be made in six days with naval vessels stationed at intermediate points, in case of emergency.

The greatest feat of the project would be the 2,100-mile hop from San Francisco to Hawaii. With this accomplished, the flight from Honolulu to Manila could be made in easy stages with stops at Johnston island, Jaluit island and Panape, Pelew group.

The third leg would be from Manila to Sandakan and would then follow the route taken by Sir Ross Smith in his memorable flight from Europe to Australia along the Australian coast within the barrier reef where calm water would always be encountered. The fourth leg would be from Sydney to Honolulu, by way of Fiji, Samoa, Phoenix and Palmyra islands.

Present plans call for a mock attack on Hawaii in the Spring, to be participated in by combined Army and Navy forces.

The maneuvers contemplate the employment of the entire fleet in an attempt to eject a mythical enemy which has gained possession of the Islands. The complete battle fleet, the battleship Wyoming, a squadron of light cruisers, and several divisons of submarines which will be transferred from the Atlantic for a cruise to Australia will form the naval attacking force.

The enemy occupying Hawaii will be made up of the regular Army garrison stationed on the Islands, together with the existing Hawaii and Naval District, and the local National Guard will be organised as a reserve.

Special interest will be attached to the effectiveness of the fortifications of Hawaii. The underlying theory of the maneuvers contemplates the use of Hawaii as an enemy base for a subsequent attack on the Panama Canal and the western coast of the United States.

A. W. C.

An interesting program is scheduled for this afternoon by the Library Department of the American Women's Club which meets in the Club Rooms at 4:30 p.m.

Mrs. J. Warner Brown will present "Modern Fiction of Norway, Sweden and Denmark" after which a paper on "Current Events" will be given by Mrs. C. H. Robertson.

The programs which the Library Department has been giving this year are unusually stimulating and members will find it well worth their while to follow these lectures.

Result Of The Conservative Victories In America And England Probably Means Overthrow Of Soviet Regime In Russia

BY GEO W. MISSEMER

Regarding the loan which the British Government was negotiating to give to the Soviets, under the guidance of the retiring British Premier, Mr. Ramsay MacDonald—but which has under present circumstances probably now been shelved for years to come—it is interesting to note that although the loan, if granted, was, according to Mr. MacDonald, to have been spent according to the ideas of the British government, a prominent writer in the Moscow paper "Isvestia," expressed himself as follows:

Not one farthing of the loan will be spent in England. It is intended to use the entire amount to give further subsidies to the nationalised industries of Russia, to employ 1,500,000 workless trade unionists, and to distribute factory products to peasants on credit, so preventing the collapse of the Bolshevik regime."

The greatest blow which the Bolshevik regime in Russia has got during the past several years has been the result of the recent elections in Great Britain and in the United States. Had Mr. MacDonald been re-elected and had Mr. LaFollette been able to throw the election for the U. S. President into the House of Representatives, no matter what the eventual result might have been, there would have been great joy in the Bolshevik camp. But under present circumstances there is the utmost gloom. The great Anglo-Saxon world, the cradle of liberal and representative ideas of government, has definitely spoken against any idea of adopting the "dictatorship of the proletariat"—that is, in the sense that the Soviets use that phrase. Although as a matter of fact it was the proletariat in both America and in Great Britain that has spoken and they have put it definitely on record, for the present at least, that the existing forms of government,- sanely and honestly promulgated and adhered to, and the laws executed in a conservative spirit, are quite good enough for them.

WHAT THE SOVIETS WANT

In the face of the verdict of the British and American people, the recent recognition by France of the Soviets will mean very little. There are two things in this world that the present rulers in Russia anxiously seek—first, money; second recognition. Now, it so happens that the Anglo-Saxon world is the only one in which the Russian goverament, even under the most favorable circumstances, could hope to get the money, and in the present circumstances the Russian government can expect for little help in that direction, unless, as was the case, several years ago, the American people loosen their purse strings out of charity to keep millions of helpless people from starving.

It is, of course, possible that, following on the recognition of the Soviets by the French government, every effort will be made by the Russians to get money from the French, and if the French people who have already lost milliards upon milliards by their ventures in Russia feel like throwing good money after bad, that, one might almost say, is their own concern. And yet, not entirely. The American government might, with quite consistent logic, remind the French government that it is hardly playing the game to be loaning out money—and on very bad security at that—while a huge debt to the United States is still owing.

POPULACE HELD IN LEASH

The repercussion of the result of the British and American election will likely make its effects felt very shortly in Russia, both economically and politically. So much has been written falsely against the Bolsheviks, such stories as the nationalisation of women for example, that the general public almost tires of hearing anything on the subject. But the fact is not to be lost sight of how serious a matter for the present regime in Russia the result of the recent elections in America and England really is. Even today it is difficult to get the truth about Russia, but the very fact that permission to travel by way of Siberia is only granted as a favor and after what is really a most humiliating cross-questioning, is in itself evidence that the Bolsheviks are afraid to let the outside world know what conditions in Russia are like. And what the successors of Lenin mostly fear is that the rank and file of the populace in Russia should really realise in what a leash they are held.

LIGHT IS PENETRATING

But despite all precautions, light is gradually shining in. Russia is a giant, helplessly bound by a few ambitious leaders—absolutely cruel, though apparently idealistic. Without foreign capital Russia will remain a pitifully poor country for many, many years to come. Unlike here in China where it is the populace which is so utterly opposed to anything in the way of foreign concessions, the Russian populace is really indifferent to the matter of foreign concessions, or rather might it be said that they would welcome money no matter what source it came from. But that money will not be forthcoming from the only quarter that has it to give—namely the Anglo-Saxon world—so long as the Bolsheviks remain in power. So soon as that idea soaks into the minds of the great mass of Russian people they will depose the present rulers and adopt a workable system, just as the Germans, when they realised what the Kaiser's regime had done for them, deposed the Hohenzollerns, and adopted a Republican form of government.

IMPORTS LARGER FROM FAR EAST, SEATTLE SHOWS

More Than $12,000,000 Of Silk From Japan is Received

Seattle, Washington, Sept. 28.—More than $12,000,000 worth of silk from Japan on two ships will have passed through Seattle terminals this week with the arrival of the Nippon Yusen Kaisha's steamer Yokohama Maru late Saturday, bearing 2,175 bales of raw silk and forty-three cases of manufactured silk, valued at more than $4,000,000. The Africa Maru, of the Osaka Shosen Kaisha, berthed Wednesday, carrying 5,000 bales of raw silk valued at more than $8,000,000. In addition to the silk, the Africa Maru carried 600 tons of bulk vegetable oils and 3,000 tons of manufactured goods. This gives an index to the increase in Oriental imports, which has occurred since the spring and early summer slump.

Imports continue to far exceed exports, however, although an increase of 50 cents a thousand on lumber freight rates to Japan last week and an additional increase of 50 cents this week indicate improvement in the trans-Pacific lumber trade. Operators report every sign of a stiffening of the market. The cause for the increased business is not more building in Japan, but a shortage of Russian, Saghalien and Hokkaido lumber this summer and a reduction of the government lumber reserve. The continued balance of trade in Japan's favor has strengthened the value of Japanese currency and is increasing buying.

Arrangements by grain interests for the storage and shipment of 12,000,000 bushels of wheat from Seattle were made this week. Domestic lumber trade declined this week, although prices remained firm and new business continued to exceed production, though less than last week.

Announcement was made today of the application by Northwest concerns for power rights to generate a total of about 35,000 horsepower. The Skagit plant of the City of Seattle was scheduled to begin production of a maximum of 50,000 horsepower Saturday evening. Until a storage basin is constructed, however, the maximum can be delivered only during the summer high water period. High water on the Skagit comes during the summer because it is a glacier stream. The last unit of the Seattle-Alaska cable left for Ketchikan this week. It is a span 1,100 miles long and will connect Ketchikan and Seward. The Seattle-Ketchikan span was completed last May.

Building has suffered a temporary slump with a surplus of craftsmen in the construction trades. Work on a new $500,000 motion picture theater for Warner Brothers is expected to be begin within the next two months. Eastern Washington fruit production is about half what it was last year. The decrease has been especially great in the Yakima Valley. The domestic distributing department of the United States Chamber of Commerce has announced that Seattle retail business is $100,000,000 a year.

DISCUSS DELAY IN THE REVIVAL OF U.S. TRADE

Views Of 150 Experts Are, With Few Exceptions, Very Cheerful

New York Sept. 22.—Following the recent advance of prices on the Stock Exchange, an action that is supposed to serve as a barometer of future business conditions, bankers and manufacturers have bent their efforts toward forecasting conditions in the immediate future.

In an effort to determine the underlying trend, A. W. Shaw, in an article written for the magazine System, has analyzed the views of 150 bankers, business men, manufacturers and representatives of various lines of business endeavor. The expression dominant in most of these is that present conditions are sound, that an important period of readjustment has been gone through, and that the next turn is upward.

H. H. Rice, President of the Cadillac Motor Car Company, finds that "we are due for a very substantial business the coming Fall and Winter."

Pierre S. du Pont, Chairman of the board of General Motors Corporation, states: "It would appear to me that there was a more general expectation of better business during the Spring of 1924 than was realized. This caused some overstocking of materials which are now being liquidated, and factories operating at less output. It seems clear that this surplus stock must be comparatively small, as it was a very short time accumulating. Therefore, one would expect quick liquidation and return to normal."

NORMAL BUSINESS BY 1925

W. S. Gifford, Executive Vice President of the American Telephone and Telegraph Company, says: "I feel that neither short-term nor long-tern factors should make us expect a prolonged period of depression; indeed, I feel quite confident that we already have the worst behind us. I should have expected conditions to show distinct improvement by the end of this year, even if the remarkable, rise in agricultural prices of the last month or six weeks had not taken place. In the light of the agricultural situation as it has developed, and quite apart from whatever happens in Europe, I feel that the upturn while doubtless halting for a while, should come rather soon and, after it gathers some momentum, proceed fairly steadily. I should not be surprised if business in general were back to normal the middle of next year, if not somewhat earlier."

In the Far West conditions are described as sound by F. L. Lipman, President of the Wells Fargo Bank and Union Trust Company, who says: "Underlying conditions today are undoubtedly sound, and to an unusual extent they do not depend for their soundness on the opinion that people may hold."

Modest improvement is seen in prospect by Daniel Willard, President of the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad Company, who says: "The improved condition in connection with agriculture, character of our crops, and the price at which some of the principal crops are being sold at the present time, must of itself, so it seems to me, have a very helpful effect on the general business situation. In brief, I am optimistic, but not violently so."

INDUSTRY PICKING UP

Bright prospects are seen for the future by W. O. Rutherford, Vice President of the B. F. Goodrich Rubber Company, who says: "To me the most gratifying thing is the improved agricultural situation. Not only does this help economically, but it gives a decidedly better tone to the body politic, which latter is probably of greater importance than a mere financial betterment."

James Simpson, President of Marshall Field & Co., says: "I look for better business this Fall. There has already been some improvement in the dry goods and general merchandising lines, as reflected in increased sales by Marshall Field & Co.—in the house, on the road, and by mail."

E. G. Grace, President of the Bethlehem Steel Company, Inc., finds: "The upward trend in our own operation is most encouraging, and built upon the underlying sound foundation. We now look with confidence to a general accelerated activity."

A. R. Erskine, President of the Studebaker Corporation, observes: "The consuming power and desire of the American people never decrease. Only their ability to satisfy the desire decreases from curtailed employment or income, and what appears to be overproduction is often underconsumption."

By Samuel Weil, President of the Stein-Bloch Company, the view is expressed: "It would seem to me that there is unwarranted slowness on our part in gearing our productive capacity to the point warranted by conditions in which we are enveloped, or, at best, conditions which we may rightly figure are immediately ahead."

DEMAND IS BIG FOR AMERICAN BROAD SILKS

Orders Pile In At Paterson Plant For Crepes, Satins, Etc.

Paterson, New Jersey, Sept. 9.—In spite of the turbulent conditions in this city, demand for broad silks continues to increase. Manufacturers who have plants in operation here are working to the limit.

In one case $50 per week has been offered for weavers to operate four looms on lightweight crepes, satins and taffetas. For two looms $35 and $30 are offered to both men and women who will do the work. It is becoming the vogue for manufacturers to pay by the week rather than piece work, at least it will be done in this way for the time being, or until these orders are finished.

The orders are piling up for crepe de chines, crepe satins, cantons, satin cantons and taffetas, and in many instances the local mills are closed, with as much of the work as possible shipped to branch factories. In others surplus stocks have been sufficient to carry the manufacturers over to the present, but unless there is a change in two or three weeks there will be little left on hand.

TAFFETAS IN DEMAND

The Gilt Edge Silk Mills opened up yesterday after being closed since the middle of August, working on taffetas, operating three looms. They find demand active for taffeta at the moment and have been starting up many looms on this type of work. While they are equipped to operate 240 looms there is only a small proportion of them running up to the present time.

The Empire Silk Company, which has numerous orders for brocades and heavy crepes on their books and buyers calling for more at the present time, have also been closed for about four weeks and from present indications it does not look as though they would reopen for another two weeks, it has been said. While they are having no labor trouble and their workers are satisfied, it was thought best to close the shop and thus avoid trouble with the labor unions.

The Pelgram & Meyer plant on East 19th street continues to operate as usual. Their weavers did not leave their looms, nor are they willing to do so now. The weavers on Temple and Matlock streets went out on the first day of the strike, but have made no overtures to the firm about returning up to the present time.

Conditions were more favorable today at the Herman mill, where Rosenstein Bros. are located, and while there were a few pickets going back and forth occasionally there was no disorder and they did not loiter on the street before the mill.

Plans have been made and counsel is busy for several mills getting out injunctions against mass picketing. Three firms are awaiting their papers, is has been said, which will enable them to open their shops to all of their workers.

Ribbons are picking up and most of the ribbon shops are showing increased activity. Wider ribbons are sought, and in many cases very wide velvets are wanted for both the millinery and dress trade. There is developing a demand for medium grosgrains with plain and picot edge. There is also some fancy edges being prepared in metal combinations, having deep scallops and corded edges.

HIGH COLORS PREDOMINATE

High colors predominate at the moment, although metal tones are most active in brocades and fancies. Prints are moving in good volume in the more subdued tones, although pastel combinations have been favored by cutters for the dress trade. Fancy velvet ribbons have been featured in light and medium colors in brocades, stripes and some block plaid effects.

There is some call for piece goods in velvets in the wider widths, although pile fabric of all descriptions are wanted. The Pennsylvania Textile Mills in Athenia are adding to their forces producing mohairs for the upholstery trade. Black is sponsored in dress velves and beaver brown. Beaver is also wanted in drapery velours.

When Dreaded Croup Comes

A thing of dread, that comes in the night without warning. Just a hoarse, metallic cough, a choking, gasping for breath, a threat of suffocation. Oh! the relief of knowing that there is a bottle of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy in the house. See how it clears away the choking phlegm, stops the hoarse cough, and brings rest and sleep to the little sufferer. Sold everywhere.

American Dyes Equal Foreign Products, Says Chemical Expert.

American dye exports now reach 18,000,000 pounds annually, while today fully 96 percent of American consumption is being supplied by the domestic industry, according to Dr. Charles H. Herty, president of the Synthetic Organic Chemical Manufacturers Association of the United States, who in a report of progress to the American Chemical Society asserts that in nine years "a modern miracle has been worked."

"It is difficult to give accurately the capitalisation of the industry," says Dr. Herty, "for in many cases it is impossible to decide what part of the capitalisation of a company should be apportioned to that side of its activities represented by the manufacture of dye products."

United States quality is fully equal to that of foreign products, he declares, and prices show a steady reduction. Research has been an important factor in the development of the last two years, he reports.

"Today consumers throughout the country bear willing testimony to the fact that the quality of American dyes fully equals those of foreign manufacture, and in many cases is better.

"There is probably no better illustration of the healthy working of Government protection than this industry affords, for it has received special protection from Government authorities, both administrative and legislative, because of the realisation of the bearing of this industry on economic independence, national defense, and public health.

"Those who early predicted that the industry would soon show a consolidation into a few large units, or perhaps one great unit in imitation of German organisation, missed their guess. The spirit of the Sherman anti-trust law has been kept inviolate.

"The industry, spurred on to intensive efforts to cheapen the cost of production and improve the quality of the products, has constantly advanced, and it is a just claim that consumers have gained the full benefit of these advances, for the Tariff Commission has been able to report each year a reduction in the average price per pound of dyes made in America."

Exchange Market

Messrs. Maitland, Fearon and Brand state in their exchange circular for the week ending November 5: The price of bar silver in London has continued to decline during the week, today's quotation of 34½d. ready and forward is 5-16d. below the spot price ruling this day last week and ¼d. below the forward price. The official T.T. rate on London after touching 3-4 3/4d. closes at 3-4¼. A sharp rise in the New York-London rate to 455 had a weakening effect on the local sterling market in the earlier part of the week but subsequent telegrams indicating a slight reaction have made rates steadier and we close with 3-4⅝d. offering for T.T. on London and 76¾ T.T. on New York.

Our stocks of silver are reported as follows:—

China's National Election This Fall!

(As It Might Have Been)

THE attention of everyone has been so concentrated upon the national elections in America and England that we have overlooked the fact that the Republic of China has also been having a national election this fall. The line-up from the standpoint of candidates in the China election, as they stood on September 1 when voting began, was somewhat as follows:

1.—Chang Tso-lin, a native-son of Manchuria, a man of lowly origin, self-made throughout, conservative, but criticised by some as being pro-Japanese.

2.—Wu Pei-fu, another man of the people, intensely patriotic, very forceful in character, a believer in China-for-the-Chinese, but criticised by some as having a single-track mind.

3.—Tsao Kun, president and candidate for reelection, a reactionary and stand-patter, popularly reputed to have obtained his previous election by misuse of campaign funds; matter still under investigation at beginning of campaign.

4.—Chi Hsieh-yuan, strongest candidate in the Yangtsze Valley, young and energetic and ambitious, and especially desirous of carrying Shanghai which had been in the hands of the opposition party for several years.

6.—Sun Yat-sen, a radical, leader of organised labor and radical discontented elements, popularly charged with being in league with Moscow communists, frequently been a candidate usually on a radical platform.

These were the principal leaders when the campaign opened in September. There were of course the usual slates of minor candidates in the field and each of the major candidates had his supporters in the field. Some of the provincial governors and other officials had not declared their positions but the two chief parties, the Chihlites and the Fengtien-Anfuites, had the field pretty much to themselves. Prominent among the minor candidates of the Chihli Party was one Feng Yu-hsiang, a prohibitionist, anti-cigarette advocate. and generally thought to be a crank on religion. Another minor candidate in the Yangtsze Valley was Ho Feng-lin. a politician of the ward-boss type who for several years had been able to "deliver" the Shanghai vote for his favorite candidate Lu Yung-hsiang. Mr. Ho was a violent political enemy of Chi Hsieh-yuan, whom he considered to be an upstart and to be suffering from egotism due to his youth.

So much for the candidates and their platforms and principle. The campaign actually started on September 3 when balloting began in a precinct in northern Kiangsu Province at the town of Huangpu (Note:—In China the elections are not all held on the same day as they are in other countries, but frequently drag out for several months before all of the returns are in. This is largely due to the slowness of communication and the ancient cumbersome methods of voting). The campaign was somewhat slow in getting started, but soon warmed up and finally developed into the hottest campaign which Shanghai had experienced since the passing of the Taiping Party more than a half century ago. It required practically forty days before all of the votes were counted, but Candidate Chi Hsieh-yuan finally won out with a small majority in the Shanghai area. Candidate Lu Yung-hsiang, the Shanghai incumbent, might have won out had he not been "knifed" by some of his subordinates at a critical stage of the campaign. After their defeat was conceded, candidates Lu and Ho immediately departed for Japan for a rest-up at one of the health resorts, but after a short stay there Lu went to Mukden to help his political friend Chang Tso-lin who was having a hot fight with his opponent in the voting which had started in several precincts near the Great Wall at the town of Shanhaikwan. Candidate Ho was reported to have returned to Shanghai to look after his extensive interests and to prevent some scandals being unearthed by his victorious opponents.

Although conditions about Shanghai have not yet returned to normalcy owing to the hotness of the campaign, it is generally thought that Candidate Chi Hsieh-yuan, the victor, is having considerable difficulty in paying off political debts.

As stated in the foregoing, the voting started in the North in the vicinity of the Great Wall in a thinly settled region. There were charges of corruption and the use of improper influence on both sides. One of the charges was that both sides were rushing in "ringers" and padding the polling lists. The voting continued however for several weeks and had almost resulted in a tie when Feng Yu-hsiang, who heretofore had not received much attention in the press on the part of the political dopesters, suddenly jumped into the limelight by carrying all of the precincts in the national capital. His victory was sweeping and immediately there were charges that he had used unfair political methods even to the extent of intimidation of federal office holders. Nothing like this had previously been observed in China or anywhere else except several years ago in the United States when the "spoils" system was invented, and where the Republicans used to operate on the principle of "turning the Democrats out,"—but then it must be remembered that China is a new republic.

Both Candidates Wu Pei-fu and Tsao Kun were disgusted at the "knifing" they received at the hands of their subordinate and retired from the field. At the present writing Fengtien, Chihli and Shansi Provinces have gone strongly Anfu and there are reports that Tuan Chi-jui, the "grand-old-man" of the party, is emerging from his retirement and hobby as a chess-player and may re-enter politics. As to Candidate Wu Pei-fu, the latest reports have it that he is returning to the Yangtsze Valley to repair his political fences in that area in preparation for the next election.

Candidate Feng Yu-hsiang who won such a sweeping victory resembling a "land-slide" in the national capital is now calling a national convention (Note:—Here again the political system in China is different. China always holds her national conventions after the election, exactly opposite to the system elsewhere). There are also rumors in circulation to the effect that investigations are to be made into campaign expenditures and that important disclosures alleged to be damaging to several political reputations are in store for the near future.

Rumblings From India

ONE is perhaps scarcely disposed to give much attention to far-off India when epoch-making events are engrossing our interest nearer our own doors, but India and China very nearly represent half the world's population, and it would not be amiss to pause for a moment from the bewildering politics of China to take stock of what is happening in that other region of the world which is causing no little anxiety to the British Raj. A telegram published in yesterday's issue tells us of a secret conference held in Calcutta attended by a large number of Swarajist leaders from all parts of India, including Mr. Gandhi, to consider the situation arising from the arrests in Bengal made under the new ordinance. In view of the feeling in India, it is a credit to Mr. Gandhi that he travelled from Delhi overnight by a circuitous route in order to avoid a demonstration, a course of action which is quite consistent with his avowed aim to secure the political and economic betterment of Indians by constitutional rather than anarchical methods, as Mr. Gandhi is second to none in maintaining that nothing impedes a good cause so much as violence. It is understood that the conference, which is likely to be protracted, is at present examining the available evidence on which the Government presumably based its ordinance, and that it will afterwards draw up a far-reaching national program to protest against the ordinance.

Recent advices from India give clear and grave indication of the extent of the damage done to the Swaraj cause by Mr. C. R. Das on August 26. On all sides there is voiced indignation that even after an interval of some six months for reflection, the largest province in India should have rejected the measure of responsible self-government extended to it, and should have decided to have no Indian Ministers. Much of the British Press criticism Indians will naturally discount. They know the views of the London Morning Post and of certain publicists, and it is not a view which can be easily reconciled with their own. But the Manchester Guardian has always been the most faithful and consistent ally of Indian Liberalism. It stands now where it has always stood. Its sympathies are as warm as ever, and that most honored journalist, Mr. C. P. Scott, with a brilliant band of assistants, still directs its policy. When the Westminster Gazette and the New Statesman—Labor's influential weekly—unite with the moderate Conservatism of the Spectator and the Times, in perfect agreement that Mr. Das' tactics are indeed deserving of Lord Olivier's description of them as a piece of "political simplicity," Indians would be well advised to take notice.

When the dust has blown away and the din has subsided, it will become apparent to all that the Montagu-Chelmsford Act is by no means at an end, nor even the dyarchical experiment. The end is not yet. Where there has been goodwill, there has been success. Where this has been absent, there has been failure. The Central Provinces and Bengal are not India, nor is Mr. Das India's spokesman. He has unquestionably made an end of dyarchy in his own province—for a time—but even there it is not certain that he has given it a death blow. It is now quite clear from the present temper of the British people, which finds its reflex in the defeat of the Labor Party at the polls, that an early attempt to revive it would arouse serious misgiving, but on the other hand the assumption of a large portion of the Home Press that it is irrevocably gone is hasty and ill-founded. The Council will certainly meet early in 1925 to transact necessary business, and if by that time Bengal wishes to repent of its folly and to provide Ministers' salaries for next year, it may be assumed that a Governor who has shown so much patience as Lord Lytton will tranquilly allow the province to take its course. The Government can, in fact, afford to remain completely aloof from the question, and the idea that it has any interest in seeking to turn the scale in favor of dyarchy or to influence votes—as suggested in certain quarters—is preposterous. If the salaries are not voted—and in order to have a clear issue it would be desirable that they should be voted first and a Ministry acceptable to the Council formed later—there will be no crisis. The machinery of government and the men to govern are still with the Indians. The only result will be that Bengal will have gone back towards bureaucracy instead of forward to self-government. This, from the province's point of view, would be regrettable.

It is to be hoped that Mr. Gandhi will throw the whole weight of his influence on the side of reason and commonsense. It is true that he has served a term of imprisonment at the hands of a British judge following upon the non-cooperation movement, but Mr. Gandhi is not vindictive by nature. He is a man of considerable erudition and a qualified barrister-at-law. We hope that his legal training will eventually induce him to consider the Indian question in a calm, cold, judicial spirit and to realise that nothing is to be gained by systematic lawlessness and violence. Even critics of Great Britain will not deny that that country has done a lot for India and the Indians, and she will do still more in the future if the Indians direct their energies and aspirations along purely constitutional channels.

Other Views Than Ours On The War In China

POOR CHINA

(Los Angeles Evening Express)

Civil war again threatens China. The 400,000,000 inhabitants are being stirred to hatred of each other, so they will fight and kill, and thereby assist the ambition of those who strive for control of the immense Mongol empire.

China has known no peace nor has there existed a central government with power to exercise authority over the country since overthrow of the empire by the revolutionists under Dr. Sun Yat-sen. The republic then set up never has administered far beyond the boundaries of Peking, while almost continuously there has existed a rival government at Canton. In this state of affairs it may be said civil war has existed in China for nearly 20 years, and the present is only a fresh outbreak.

Increasing interests of the United States in the orient compel greater attention than formerly to what is taking place there. Once our contact with the Chinese was almost solely through missionaries. In the last generation large numbers of Americans have taken up residence in China, engaging in business, and trade with the country has grown until the exports to the United States amount to nearly $200,000,000 a year, and goods purchased in this country about half that sum.

In peace China would become a still greater purchaser of American goods. It is looked upon by economists as the great future market for the manufactories of the Pacific coast.

But every disturbance such as that now reported newly broken out delays the time of realisation of the looked for great commerce.

It does much more, however, and what is of great consequence to all peoples. It interrupts the march of progress of civilisation.

THE PARTISAN CONSCIENCE

There's a very guilty feeling that is lodged within my breast;
There are moments when I wonder what has dulled my interest;
Others argue and get sore,
And they shake their fists and roar,
But I can't become excited, though I've tried my level best.

Once I had the party feeling, and was much inclined to shout;
I was keen and quick to answer every summons to turn out;
I have hoped in former years,
Or had soul-disturbing fears,
Now I stand aside and calmly wonder what it's all about.

I've a deep and sure conviction that the poor will still have crumbs,
Whether one side or the other gets a chance to pick the plums,
And the rich, I prophesy,
Will continue to supply
All the feathers that are needed for their nests, whatever comes.

There will be no great eruption and no crumbling of the wall
When one party or the other pulls its ticket through next Fall;
You and I will work away,
And we'll pay and pay and pay;
We will have no cause for weeping or for shouting—none at all.

Still, I have a guilty feeling that I cannot put aside;
Something seems to whisper to me that I ought to look with pride
On my party's candidate
As the greatest of the great,
And be eager to accept him as my prophet and my guide.

The Mystery Of Encke's Comet

BY GARRETT P. SERVISS

A little comet, which may once have been a great one, and which carries an unsolved mystery in its periodical rounds about the sun, is now once more, and for the forty-second time since its discovery in 1786, gliding among the planetary orbits near the run. It's name is Encke's Comet. It is too faint to be seen with any but the most powerful telescopes, and is not likely to become visible to anybody outside the observatories. And yet, in one respect, it is without a peer in the cometary world, on account of an unexplained peculiarity in its motion.

Although its orbit is a long ellipse, extending from a perihelion point only 30,000,000 miles from the sun, and consequently inside the orbit of Mercury, the innermost planet, to an aphelion point 400,000,000 miles from the sun, and therefore in the neighborhood of Jupiter, it takes only about three years and four months, on the average to make a circuit. That is to say, it comes back to swing around the sun periodically every forty months. This is the shortest cometary period known, but the truly unique thing about it is that it shortens about two-and-a-half hours on every turn.

This means that the little comet, instead of maintaining the same distance from the sun, drops slightly inward, toward the sun, every time it goes around. Supposing this action to continue indefinitely, the time must come when the comet will fall into the sun and be consumed.

The problem is, what causes Encke's comet to swerve a little toward the sun on every turn? The most probable answer seems to be that it encounters some unknown resistance in space which, by retarding its motion, causes it to fall nearer the center of attraction, and this approach to the center increases its speed. Thus, paradoxically, by being slowed up it is made to travel faster. The nearer it gets to the sun the more swiftly it rushes upon its fate. This paradox is easily explained from the law of gravitation. The velocity of a planet in its orbit varies inversely as the square root of its distance from the sun. The earth, at a distance of 93,000,000 miles, has an orbital velocity of nearly 19 miles per second, while Mercury at a distance of only 36,000,000 miles travels about 30 miles per second. Accordingly, if any resistance should retard the earth's motion, it would drop inward toward the sun, but in doing so its speed would be accelerated by the increased force of the sun's attraction and when it had fallen as near to the sun as Mercury, it would move in its new and smaller orbit, with a velocity of 30 miles per second. The same law applies to the motion of Encke's Comet.

But the earch and all the other planets, and all of the comets also, as far as we know, maintain their average distances from the sun, while Encke's Comet alone, mysteriously loses distance and gains velocity. If all comets, at least all small comets, that go relatively close to the sun at perihelion, showed a similar effect, the mystery would vanish, for then it would be evident that there must be some invisible obstructing matter in the space around the sun which interfered with their motion. But up to the present time it has not been found that any other celestial body travelling around the sun behaves quite in the manner of Encke's Comet. Possibly the other small comets whose motions have been studied are so much more massive than Encke's that they do not reveal the effect of resistance as it does. A thistle down is more easily retarded than a chestnut burr.

DRESS

By Mary Marshall

Velvet Ribbon Is Used Widely and Effectively to Trim Hats and Gowns

There is precious little in a woman's wardrobe that cannot be made of or adorned with velvet ribbon. For some reason or other there has always been something rather coquettish, distinctly feminine, in the possibilities of black velvet ribbon. Encircling the neck of a pretty woman it adds many new charms. A band of black velvet ribbon about a well-formed arm is frequently more becoming than a bracelet of precious stones. Black velvet streamers at the back or side of a hat lend much coquetry.

Every once in awhile black ribbon enjoys a distinct vogue. Then tons of yards of it are sold to the one yard in ordinary times; dressmakers make use of it to trim frocks and milliners study its possibilities in trimming hats. It seems quite likely that we are in for a revival of interest in black velvet ribbon at the present time.

The black velvet scarf is distinctly interesting. As created in France it was made of twelve or fourteen inch heavy black velvet ribbon—nearly three yards being used. In some cases the ribbon has a narrow edging of white satin. It may be given further effectiveness if it is fastened at one shoulder with a large white mother-of-pearl flower, and may be worn with a small hat of black velvet, likewise trimmed with a single mother-of-pearl rose.

Black velvet ribbon makes attractive banding for the high, straight-crowned felt hats of the season, or it may be formed into interesting loops and ends to trim a more ornate type of hat. One wide-brimmed black hat with loops and ends of black velvet ribbon also has three even-length streamers at the back of inch-wide black velvet ribbon. Two rosebuds at the end of one of these streamers add a further note of coquetry. Since black and white combinations have been carried over from summer to autumn, and are likely to be equally smart all winter, there is room for the frock of white trimmed with bands of black velvet ribbon.

A charming little French gown—easy to make at home for the clever needlewoman—consists of a sleeveless slip of white crepe de chine with seven vertical bandings of four or five inch black velvet ribbon. The top one defines a bateau neckline, two encircle the long bodice, one is tightly drawn around the hips, and three appear on the skirt, the last one some seven or eight inches from the lower edge. One vertical stretch of the velvet extends from the left side of the neck to the hip belt, where it ends in five loops of the velvet ribbon.

Sleeveless frock of white crepe de chine banded with black ribbon.

TUESDAY'S TASKS

In the old-time household where the maid of all work or "cook" did the washing on Monday, Tuesday was dedicated to the solemn business of ironing. Likewise was it devoted to ironing in the well-regulated household where the mother of the house with possible assistance from daughters did the washing on Monday. And they aimed to get at the work early, too. If possible the clothes were sprinkled or damped on Monday. There were families where two maids were kept where cook and second girl each took a hand at the ironing. But those days are no more.

There are some women who find ironing more fatiguing than any other part of the housework. And with the modern washing machine run by electricity, and with a goodly supply of hot water, there is pretty good reason for considering ironing at least as arduous as washing. For this reason some women nowadays who work without a maid prefer to do their own washing, with a washing machine, and then get a woman in one day—Tuesday, if possible—to do the ironing, plus a little cleaning. The cleaning is done in the morning with the ironing in the afternoon.

The old-time notion was that the good housewife didn't go to sleep with a good consicence Tuesday night until all the mending was done. She got at it in her spare moments on Tuesday afternoon just as soon as any of the clothes could be looked over, and sat up round the family-center table mending, darning stockings and refastening buttons while her husband read the paper and the children learned their lessons. It is not an unheard of thing nowadays for women who do all their own housework to employ someone to do the mending. Women who can do this sort of easy plain sewing, and can do it well, are not hard to get, especially if you let them do it at home, and they do not ask so much for their services per hour as the woman who does cleaning, or washing, or ironing, or cooking. If you cannot afford to have much done and really cannot do it all yourself, it may be that having the mending done outside is a good plan.

Do Not Sacrifice the Quality of Your Work for Quantity

Is thoughtless, unguided energy the great drawback in your life?

Do you think quickly, but not accurately and hence move more slowly?

You are far from lazy but you go to the other extreme and work under such high pressure that you make costly mistakes and waste time in making corrections.

If you would think a moment you would realize that most of your mistakes are the result of going too fast.

A horse that has run away once is all but ruined.

You are "running away" with yourself every day and lessening your power to accomplish good work.

If you employed a person who worked at such high speed as you do with the unfortunate results you produce you would look for someone who could accomplish more with less frenzied effort and more really balanced labor.

It is useless to turn out a lot of work if the quality is poor.

You know whether you are this sort of person.

Ginling College Observes 10th Annual Founders' Day

(China Press Correspondence)

Nanking, Nov. 4.—Ten times Ginling College has set aside a day on which to express gratitude to the founders of the only College for women unaffiliated with man's university, in China. The day opened with an academic service, Pastor Djang Fang of the Presbyterian Church of Nanking gave the opening Invocation. Pastor Y. C. Lee of the Christian Church read the scripture reading. The Chinese address of the day was delivered by Dr. Chen Wei-ping of the Union Theological Seminary of Nanking. He prophecied that the influence of the school which not only cultivates its students physically and mentally but also emphaeises their spiritual growth, will ever increase in its importance to the life of the nation. This work must be carried on by mission schools, whether these schools stay in the hands of foreigners, or whether they are controlled by the church members of the Chinese church. And the future of such a college as Ginling stretches out beyond the vision of the most far sighted educator beyond the dreams of the most enthusiastic worker for the consolidation of the Chinese Republic.

Professor Irving F. Wood of Smith College, also a member of the Ginling College Committee in New York, spoke on the need of some simplifying principle in the complexity of modern civilisation. He said in part:

"Complexity is not only a resultant of the buzz and whirr of modern life. The African savage whose arithmetical knowledge is limited to the number of his fingers, whose only weapon is a stick, invents a system of totemism which makes one dizzy to contemplate. There is an unaccountable instinct in human life which loves complexity. Simplicity—that is the acquired characteristic.

"Men seek an unifying principle for the life of the modern world in three words—civilisation, liberty, education. The crisscross of civilisation, with its interchange of products and of ideas, with its widening of vision—adds to the complications of life. In ancient days when an earthquake occurred in Japan the little houses were built up again almost as easily as they were thrown down. Modern conveniences are complications.

"That second great word—liberty—seems to simplify because liberty means freedom from restraint—children let out of school. But it also means the construction of ideals. China deposed the Manchu dynasty and organised a Republic. She was free from Manchu rule. But the world still wonders, and China herself wonders, what she will do with her freedom.

"The third great word—education—will it simplify life? No, education can only reproduce the power which created the best in complicated civilisation, and in complicating liberty.

"The only principle which truly simplifies is spiritual purpose. Confucius saw that the principle of unification was walking in heaven's Tao. Laotze held the same truth differently interpreted, Christ illumines it with a clearer light than either of them saw. When China has learned to thread her way through the mazes of life by the path of service for the kingdom of God, this College will be held in honor as one of the pioneers that pointed the way. May God himself guide the pioneers!"

DEDICATION OF DAY SCHOOL

Sixty children, whose homes are destitute of any intellectual background, are starting on the road of learning in the little school house built last summer by contributions of Ginling students. The service of dedication, held in the College chapel, was lead by Miss Bao Dji-lih, Ginling 1924, now teaching in the Methodist Girls' School of Chinkiang.

GINLING LIFE

A Chinese feast—tradition demands that thus Founders' Day shall close. The program of toasts, gaily responded to amid much banter and laughter, read as follows:

GINLING QUADRANGLE

Within the corners of our Quad lie furled.
The fire and splendour of the Ginling world.

Toastmistress—Miss Ellen Hanawalt, Ginling College Faculty.

Corner 1. An ageless wisdom, ever new—Mr. Marx, Board of Control.

Corner 2. And songs of lyric beauty wrought—Miss Hwang, Alumnae.

Corner 3. Our roadside friends, and you and you—Miss Yu, Student Body.—Stunts by the four classes.

Corner 4. And flick'ring dreams we've not yet caught—Mrs. Walmsley, one of the earliest graduates of Michigan University.

JUMPS TO DEATH IN MOVIE STUNT.

Dr. Ku Hung-min Speaks In Japan On Journalism

In certain all too isolated instances one has, no doubt, discovered those men who bear the distinction of possessing the international mind? Who, through some spark of genius or perhaps a greater inheritance, see the world in its entirety and the pettiness or problems that disturb humanity? Perhaps not.

But had one attended a luncheon at the Imperial Hotel yesterday in honor of Dr. Ku Hung-min of China one would have become acquainted with such a man . He spoke a few minutes to members of the International Journalists' Association. His words were spontaneous, enthusiastic. He discussed journalism, the profession. A title for his talk, had he prepared it and given it a name, might have been "Journalism, God and Bad."

When he sat down one felt one had been told something worth while. Short sentences carried meat. His humor, yeast to the bread of his philosophy, lent a bouyance to his message that is a part of him.

"We journalists," said Dr. Ku, "are the roving, mendicant friars of the priesthood of today. The literary men are the priests; the poets, the essayists, I mean. We are the friars of society.

"The world has gone through three stages of development. They used to fear God. If a boy was bad, he was told, 'You mustn't be naughty, little man—look, there's God up there to punish you.' They feared God. That was during the Middle Ages in Europe. Everybody feared God and fought the heaten.

"Later, they turned from this belief and fear, and boldy declared they feared neither God nor man. But they feared the policeman. They had to be good, for there was the policeman to enforce good behavior. Now-a-days they fear the lawyers."

Dr. Ku was termed the incarnation of "the East and the West blended harmoniously" by Mr. Motosada Zumoto, president of the Association, who introduced him. Mr. Zumoto first met the eminent philosopher and student many years ago, and recalled that friendship.

"It is my purpose," Dr. Ku said, "not to be anti-American or anti-Western. Not at all. I have been called both. But I am neither. My purpose is to see the cultures of the East and the West harmoniously joined, to become one."

UNITY OF BEST

The speaker quoted a verse he had written some 30 years ago upon the death of a friend of his in China. In it he said, in effect, that the leaders of the world should strive to unite the best of both the East and the West. "I fear, sometimes," he remarked, "we have only succeeded in uniting the worst."

"Journalists," he commented, in another definition of the profession to which he claims adherence, "are the inspectors of the work of the world's public men. Our mission is important. We check up on the leaders to see that they do their work well.

"In centuries gone by we had no journalism. There was none in the time of the Roman Empire. There was no check to keep in touch with public men and see they did their work to the public's good.

"Today, however, we have journalism and we journalists are the inspectors of public men. Ours is a sacred trust.

BAD SIDE OF JOURNALISM

"Now that is the good side of our profession. But if I may, let me tell you of the bad side of it, in my opinion. It is too hasty and thinks too little of the individual. The photographers are always taking pictures and filling the papers with photography that means nothing. There is too much of that.

"In the second place, journalism is becoming commercial. Journalists are in the pay of owners, and they sell themselves to write the sort of thing demanded of them. This is wrong. We should write what is best and without regard of the money involved. We do not want pay. We must live, so we will accept, say, an honorarium. That is all right. But let us keep journalism from becoming commercial.

"Lastly, there is too little accuracy. Interviews with me and reports of my public talks are often inaccurate in almost every detail. I know from many experiences that inaccuracy is too often the case in many an article. That is because, perhaps, of the hurry and rush to get the news first."

The humor of this scholar whets the edge of his intellect. He sees things as they are, if the brief photograph of his personality gained in listening to him and talking with him at yesterday's luncheon be sufficient proof. Ordinarily, it wouldn't. The belief that it is lends logic to the intuition.

AMERICA'S THREE P'S

"In America," Dr. Ku commented before rising to make his talk, "you have the three P's which we must fear," and he smiled. "They are—no, not preachers—the patriots, the politicians and the professors."

"Also," he added, "you have two classes of people. They are those who are theoretical with no connection to action on their theories—these people give us 'hot air'—and the materialistic practical men who bustle all the while. Do you think," he asked, laughing behind the gray wisps of his beard, "I would be bustled off my feet should I go to America? I have been told so."

He spoke of China and America and the relations between these republics.

"We are more alike than you think," he remarked. "We have no desire to fight America, or the white race. Such a thought is foolish."

Dr. Ku, you see, is from China, yet he is hardly a Chinese in the ordinary denotation of that term. Neither is he an Asiatic, or a European. His character defies definition, lest it be said he is a world figure, embodying, as his introducer declared, the best of the East and the West. A thinker, this, and a mind that can see the true nature of the problems that disrupt the happy family of nations.

His intellect, bromidically, hews to the line, letting the chips fall where they may. He can say scathing things about China, for that is his native land. By the same token, almost, he can say things critically about the nations of the West, for, in sooth, he speaks their language and thinks as they think—he is one of them by everything but blood. And it is a person's prerogative to criticise badly his own, his native, land, yet to defend it against the derrogations of others.

His dynamic talk, extemporaneous and personal, to his fellow-journalists, ended abruptly. The picturesque scholar, wearing the clothes of his country and queue of monarchistic China, yet undoubtedly the most modern thinker in all that potential land, denied he was a success or a great man, or anything but "a roving journalist."

"There is much to be done in our profession. It is for you who are younger to do. For I am old," he said, and sat down.

SHANGHAI, FRIDAY, NOVEMBER 7, 1924

Alberto And Forral Go 12 Big Rounds To Draw

Pete Alberto and Benny Forral went twelve rounds to a draw decision in a splendid fight at the Carlton last night. As is usual when a fine bout is staged, there was a poor crowd, but this may be partly due to the fact that the promoters were unable until Wednesday to advertise the bouts as being at the Carlton. At any rate, these two boys put up an exhibition which drew a hand from the audience at the end of every round. Alberto landed more hard wallops than Forral, and many considered it his fight but the draw decision handed down was pretty well received. Benny putting up a plucky and creditable fight throughout.

In the previous fight between Flores and Folyano, Flores kayoed the lighter boy in the eighth round, after a good fight in which Folyano showed up well and proved himself a game youngster as well as a fast one. In the second event Pete got the decision over Fernan in another good fight, and in the curtain-raiser Young Freddie and Charlie Xavier went four rounds to a draw.

TERRIFIC PACE IN FINAL

The final contest, of course, was the real main event, and fully worthy of it. Pete Alberto and Benny Forral went into the ring in splendid condition, and went through the fight at a terrific pace. The two weighed in at 116 and 121 pounds respectively, and Benny needed all his six pounds advantage over the southpaw, as the fight soon showed. Mr. Percival refereed.

The boys started off fast, going the first round at a clip seldom seen. Alberto landed first, but Benny came back quick with right and left swings. After some fast footwork, Alberto landed his left swing to the stomach, and after a moment put it over again. Four jolts Alberto landed within half a minute, but Benny took them all and came back for more.

He got what he came back for in the second round, when shortly after they started in Alberto landed with both right and left wallops which made it look as if a kayo was coming, but Benny kept right on. Head-to-head work started here, with boys swinging at short range, and was continued in the third, which also Alberto started with his left swing to the body. Benny landed to the face and Alberto both to the face and body. Pete was apparently trying to put across his deadly left for a kayo, but the knockout failed to materialise, and Benny several times jabbed him in the face while Alberto was telegraphing his homicidal intention. Pete landed his body punch a couple of times, and finally a left to the jaw followed by another to the body threatened a kayo again, but Benny came back as usual.

The boys went at it again in the fourth, and Alberto landed his body punch twice, jarring Benny a bit, but the bigger boy came back for more, and got it. After the whirlwind fighting of the first couple of rounds the boys were slowing up a little, but it was still a splendid fight, and in the fifth a couple of slams from Alberto knocked Forral off his balance, but Benny was up again without a count.

BENNY GETS BACK

After this, however, Benny apparently concluded it was time to get back at the southpaw, and finished the round strong. He kept it up in the sixth, which was head-to-head fighting most of the way. Alberto landed his left a few times, but Benny got the other boy with right and left swings repeatedly. The boys separated at intervals to land some vicious wallops, but with little apparent effect. In the seventh round the fighting was somewhat slower, though both boys landed well.

In the eighth Forral plunged into Alberto again, but Pete met him, and there was some infighting in which Alberto got the best of it, though Benny landed some in the breaks. The boys were showing the effect of their earlier efforts, but in the ninth the pace became faster again. Alberto landed his left to the ribs twice, and after some head-to-head work got through with two terrific wallops which made it look bad for Benny for a little while.

Alberto slammed his left to the body twice in the tenth, and after a few moments came through again. Fighting at close quarters, Pete pushed Benny through the ropes once, but hung on to him and brought him back again, and continued to slug.

The eleventh round continued fast. Alberto again landed his left to the body, giving Benny pretty nearly all he had, but Forral took it and came back for more, and landed successfully several times.

The boys jumped at each other in the twelfth, and landed again and again. Many of Alberto's swings landed on Forral's elbows, as a number had done in previous rounds, and Benny got through with some rights and lefts which made things pretty even. It was a splendid finish, with both boys going to it hot and heavy.

FLORES KAYOES FOLYANO

The fight between Flores and Folyano was another battle. Flores outweighed the newcomer by several pounds, and started slugging right from the start, going in aggressively with right and left swings some of which landed. Folyano's quickness saved him repeatedly, however, and there was no real damage done, but in the second, in which Flores continued to press the fight, near the end of the round Felipe landed several blows in succession that apparently jarred Folyano. The lighter boy recovered, however, and the third round continued much the same.

Flores was not doing all the landing by any means, Folyano getting in again and again with jabs to the face which hurt, but Felipe had all the best of the fight until the fifth, when Folyano took the offensive, and landed effectively a couple of times. Though his offense was not as strong as the heavier boy's, he landed several wallops which Flores felt, and this was Folyano's round.

In the sixth the fighting was faster, and both boys landed some good punches. They increased the pace again in the seventh, and mixed it up harder, Folyano apparently getting better with each round, in spite of the slams which Felipe had given him.

In the eighth the two boys started in strong again, but after a few moments, fighting at close quarters, Folyano got a terrific blow in the eye, apparently from Flores' left, which made him cover up. Flores went in with vicious rights and lefts until the other boy went down for the count. There was a very bad cut over Folyano's right eye, an unusually powerful wallop for Flores.

PETE LICKS FERNAN

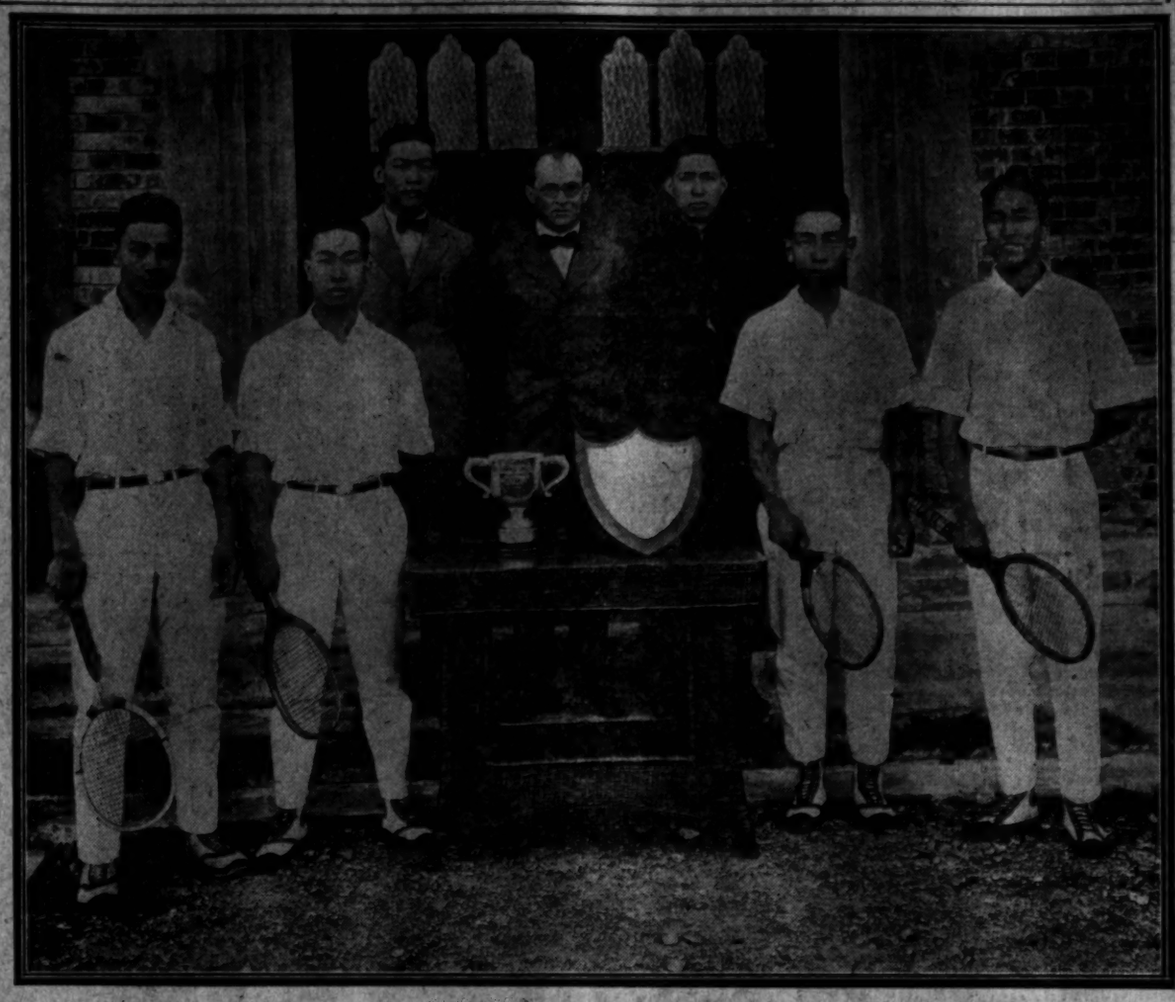
In the second event Nevsky was booked to meet Romulo, a Filipino lightweight, but the Russian failed to turn up, and a report was received that he had left Shanghai yesterday. Whether he saw Romulo first, or what was the cause of his unexpected departure, is as yet unknown.

Pete and Fernan substituted, however, and made a pretty good fight of it for the six rounds it lasted. Fernan, as usual, kept drawing back his right for a kayo which never landed. Pete, as usual, gave the wonderful exhibitions of elephantine grace characteristic of him, but nevertheless put across some good punches. Pete is fighting pretty well now, in spite of his apparent clumsiness.

Referee Camion's decision last night, giving Pete the fight, was disputed by a number of persons, who considered Fernan fully entitled to a draw decision.

In the curtain-raiser Joe Ching failed to turn up, and Young Freddie substituted for him, going four rounds to a draw with Charlie Xavier.

Intercollegiate Tennis Champions For 1924-25



There has been some excellent tennis developed among Chinese students, and the East China Intercollegiate Tennis Series each year shows some very good play. This year Shanghai College outclassed the other teams, winning the finals, with Nanking University, in five straight sets. The student stars who achieved this victory, and who are fully entitled to be termed the finest Chinese tennis team in the country, are shown in the above picture. Reading left to right, the players are Henry Ling, P. L. Hwang (Captain), C. L. Tong, and G. D. Hwang. In the back are T. T. Zee, President of the Athletic Association, Coach E. Kelhofer, and Manager C. C. Chiu.

Shanghai College was also the winner of the Intercollegiate Championship last year, so this year's triumph gives the local institution another leg on the Slazenger Cup, which was donated in the spring of 1923.

The story of the games in the Intercollegiate series has already appeared in THE CHINA PRESS.

New Zealanders Beat Ulster Team

Belfast, Nov. 5.—The New Zealand "All Blacks" beat Ulster here today by 28 points to six.

Goslin's Hitting Wins Fourth For Senators

New York, Oct. 7.—And now they are even, a day with the mighty frame of Walter Johnson looming stark against the skyline. It was the melancholy blending of somber threnodies that beat upon the Giants in the fourth game of the series and crushed them to the earth.

The first threnody of Giant despair was the steady drumming of Washington bats, led by the sonorous war club of Loen Goslin, that drove Virgil Barnes to the cover of the jungle brush with a blistering fusillade that hammered across five early runs. The second threnody was the buoyant and boisterous chorus of 40,000 fans, four-fifths of the crowd, rooting with shrill clamor for a Washington victory and a Giant defeat.

Before the double avalanche the Giants wilted and went back to dust as Washington, with Oakley and Marberry pitching swung back upon even terms, with the stout arms of Johnson and Zachary still left for tomorrow's game at the Polo Grounds. The score was 7 to 4, with Washington as all-conquering in New York as he was at Delaware and Yorktown.

New York's unending clamor for a Washington triumph must have pounded its way beneath Giant skins but the title of this stirring drama should be "Goslin revenge." It took the quacking of many geese to save Rome, but the whacking of one Goslin was quite enough to save the Nation's capital from impending doom.

GOSLIN'S HITS

On the day before Goslin should have harvested four hits and won the game, but no matter where he hit the ball, the long and wiry fingers of Frank Frisch hauled it out of the air or up from the sod. Frisch tore the hero's chaplet from Goslin's clammy brow all afternoon with impossible catches and stops. But for Frisch, Goslin would have been the wonder boy of that afternoon. But in this four game Goslin double-crossed the Fordham flash at every turn and left him disconsolate in the wake of the avenge.

On his first trip up the fleet Jersey man who summers along the purling Potomac hit one on a line almost over second base. Frisch came near breaking his well-knit spine diving for the ball and almost knocked it down. From that point on Goslin worked with the craft and cunning of an Apache on the trail.

He adopted a new slogan known as "Hit 'em where Frisch ain't" in his second trip up in the third inning. With two on base he whaled one high into the right field stands for a home run that Frisch couldn't have caught in an airplane unless it had a selfstarter.

On his last two dramatic stands Goslin pumped two fine singles to left center, as far away from the brooding Frisch as Hagen can play a mashie shot. These four saluting salvos in honor of Mr. Frisch helped to check in five of Washington's seven runs and they found as great favor with the 50,000 fans as if Babe Ruth had been setting another record.

All was merry and the Goslin hung high, where, except for the brilliancy of Frisch the day before the invading star would have had eight lusty hits in an unbroken row. Recalling his ghastly fate from Monday afternoon, the crowd was a Goslinic gathering from the start. As he began to pound over hit after hit and run after run the cheering assemblage treated him as few home heroes are ever received.

Everything was upside down from the viewpoint of the ancient rooter. Who could have told that the home town was getting terrible roasting from the joy and applause of the cheering stands?

Washington, with the gallant Peckinpaugh still crippled and the infield badly scrambled, dashed back valiantly to even terms through the keen pitching of George Mogridge and the heavy hitting of Goslin, Harris, McNeely and Bluege.

This deadly quartet assaulted Barnes, Bladwin and Dean for twelve of the thirteen hits which the invaders hammered on a line to uncovered spots. They chased Barnes off the battlefield with nine hits and five runs in the first five innings and they broke through Weyland Dean for two more. They wavered and reeled for a brief spell in the first, but after that, with almost the solid support of the crowd, they turned on the Giants and came near clawing in their uniforms off.

MOGRIDGE & MARBERRY

After early sinking spell, Mogridge, the tall, angular lefthander, settled down to the main business of the afternoon. While Goslin and others were pummeling Barnes, Mogridge was tieing up the Giant attack with three hits and a run for the first seven innings. He was breezing along like a gale from the barren lands until he struck the eighth. At this point he was leading 7 to 2, when he passed Young and Meusel with only one out and had then tossed over two balls to Hack Wilson, but Harris called a council of war around the box and after many earnest words, finally sent Mogridge on his way with Marberry set up in front of Giant bats. The relief star was back at his old trade.

He was no longer starting, but finishing a game. As the champion trouble shooter of the trade, he held the Giants at bay, although they made a series of threatening gestures before the game was over. But Marberry rarely finished in vain.

Give him a lead and he will carry it the rest of the way against any attack that was ever invented. He has been in three of the four games played where his best work has been done after some one else had gone away to leave him the concluding chapters of the book to write. His main idea is a happy ending and he rarely fails to put the villain in his place, and this is what he did today.

Johnson's Second Lost Game Tragedy Of Years

New York, Oct. 8.—The years are the great collectors of all competitive life. Like hunting ghosts at midnight, with silent tread and shadowy presence, they come to collect their toll as they leave behind only the mocking memories of youth. Walter Johnson, one of the three greatest pitchers that ever lived, with Christy Matheson and Benton Tecumseh Young, fell again into the dust of defeat. He was cut down not so much by the pounding bats of the Giants as by the relentless scythe of the ancient father who is without sentiment and without reverence.

Johnson lost his second game of the series, 6 to 2, before a record crowd, as the Giants moved to within one game of the golden goal that waits just beyond. So the vast shadows of despair hang heavily over Coffeyville, Kas., and Washington, D. C., where the big, broad-shouldered, sandy-haired pitcher is something more than a pitcher with a fast ball.

Walter Johnson to these two towns is something more than a pitcher with a brilliant past. He is one of the paladins, a beau sauseur of sport, an outstanding figure of modesty and courage and fairness and great skill. But Johnson had waited too long, where fate and time, the relentless prosecutors, take no heed of anything but facts.

For eighteen years Johnson, with his fast ball singing through the air, had dreamed of world series glory, he had broken records en route, but his team waited too long.

When all the game is young, lad,
And pitching arms are keen,
When morning songs are sung, lad,
Along the sporting green;
Then hey for any game, lad,
Around the world of play,
Young blood will find its fame, lad,
And stars will have their day.
But when the game is old, lad,
And pitching arms are worn,
The aging nerves are torn,
And in the deadly swerve, lad,
Where hearts must be unstrung,
God grant you find one curve, lad,
You threw when you were young.

Mr. King Levy knew the ways of sport. Johnson at 38 had passed the prime of his greatness. At 38, in the drive or competitive sport, after 18 years of struggle one may come upon a great day by some happy chance, but the odds lean to the sinew and the stamina of youth.

EIGHTEEN YEARS TOO LONG

For 18 years the Coffeyville cyclone had been sending his fast ball by the whirring bats of countless stars. In that long span the old elastic had about worn out. The rubber was gone, stretched to the breaking limit. They got twelve hits from the star veteran in his first game, and beat him after a gallant struggle in his fifth game and his second start the Giants collected thirteen hits and three of the six runs came in the eighth inning when the speed king was just a tired old man, calling upon something that had passed. The passing years had collected their toll and when Johnson called upon his reserve force he found that the cupboard was empty and nothing was left but weariness and heartache and defeat.

Here, in this fifth game were all the settings and the trappings. The flares were ready to be lighted in far away Coffeyville to spread their story of victory across the Western plains. Here was one of the vital games of the series before the greatest crowd. The President of the United States was waiting eagerly and anxiously for each play.

Thousands of letters had come to Johnson giving encouragement for success. We know of one 8-year-old Washington lad who sobbed his heart out all night when the king was beaten in his first start.

Eighteen years and the second chance after defeat. And we happen to know the deadly earnestness Johnson felt, not only for himself, but for this national appeal. They were all for him. Everything was for him but that grim, remorseless and haunting ghost known as time. These encroaching years are the most merciless of all life's factor. They are without sentiment or regard for beauty or for skill. Their business is to collect the toll.

Over fifty thousand fans at the Polo grounds sat and watched young Giants hammer Johnson's speed and curves for thirteen hits and six runs. In the two games he had pitched, Giant bats had played the funeral march upon this once all-conquering right arm for twenty-five hits and ten runs as the specter of time looked into his weather-beaten face and laughed at the vain efforts of an old man in sport trying to play with kids.

One of these kids was Fred Lindstrom, the young Giant third baseman. Lindstrom is 18 years old. He was born about the time Johnson won his first big league game. Lindstrom tore into Johnson for four hits. He had his seven hits for two days. He was 18 against 38. He had a start of twenty years. If you think this means nothing you know but little of competitive sport. Thirty-eight is young in many fields. One may have the snows of winter upon his head and the sunshine of April upon his heart at 70. But not in the grind and rush of competition.

For seven innings Johnson gave his Jack Bentley, the fast ..... almost an even battle. Through the first half of the eighth the score was 3 to 2 in favor of the Giants. Two of these Giant runs had been due to Bentley's home run in the fifth when he scored Hank Gowdy also with a blasting wallop into the upper tier of the right field stands. This made the third home run hit off Johnson in the series.

In the eighth the unsuppressable Goslin hit his third home run, trying Babe Ruth's record. The gray goose was still honking high in the heavens of fame. He had made six hits and two home runs in the last two games. Washington was still in the game until the last of the eighth. It was here that Johnson broke down completely. He called upon everything he had but there was little left.

OLD MACHINE CREAKING

The old machine was creaking badly. There was almost no gasoline left. Kelly opened this fatal chapter with a single. Terry walked and Johnson's error, due to overhaste on Wilson's bunt, filled the bases. The king was dying but no crown prince is announced until the throne is vacant. A sacrifice fly, a fielder's choice and hits by McQuillan, who had followed Bentley and by Lindstrom scored three runs. That was quite enough. Bentley got through nearly until the eighth.

After Goslin had struck off for his home run. Judge singled. With an array of right handed hitters coming up McGraw elected to send in McQuillan. Besides it might have started a precedent to let anyone pitcher finish a game. This is the day of the seven inning pitcher. Few go any further.

Bentley had been doing quite well and his home run had been a vital factor, but out he went in wake of just two hits. In the sixth inning Bentley's fast curve ball had struck out the side. He had fanned Rice, Goslin and Bluege. He was moving along like a champion until the redoubtable Goslin hit his third home run of the series and the fifty-sixth home run of the world series play.

There had been fifty-five world series home runs hit before if the vital statistics has its appeal. It was the fifth home run hit off Bentley, who seems to have homerun balls in his skillful repertoire. Ruth had hit four in world series games and Baker, Gardner, Ward and Meusel had each hit three until Goslin came along to join the select chance. Maybe two more chances, if the series goes to seven games and Zachary stops Nehf in the sixth encounter.

The Giants now need only one more game. But the next two, if they are both needed, must be played on Washington soil, where the fragrant odor of home cooking will help to buoy up Buck Harris and his tribe. And this game, hardfighting Washington bunch may go the route. They have Zachary left and after Zachary they have Mogridge and Marberry. If they can beat Nehf and his wounded hand on Thursday they still have the edge. And Nehf still has a throbbing mitt.

Johnson was far off in his second start. In the third inning he rapped a long hit to left that looked as if it would carry into the stands. But the ball struck the top ledge and bounded back. Johnson, turning first, jogged on toward second as if he had a home run to ride on. He was half way down when he discovered his mistake and so was nailed before he got back to first.

McNeely and Harris followed with hits and if Johnson had been alert the bases would have been full with none out. This might have made a vast difference. As it was the next two men went out and Washington had made three hits in a row without getting a man as far as third. This is one for the historians. It certainly never happened before in any world's series. The Giants scored their first run in the third on singles by Jackson, Bentley and Lindstrom. Washington tied it up on singles by Judge and Miller. The big detonation came in the fifth when Gowdy singled and Bentley hit one into the right field stands. This was the crushing volley of the game. It gave the Giants an edge to work on. The subsequent details, with Johnson's eighth inning collapse, have been related. The brilliant star of other years was now just a tired old man at the end of an eighteen-year-old dream.

FINE BASKETBALL SEASON IS LOOKED FORWARD TO HERE

Wednesday's Meeting; Rowing Club Already Starts Evening Play

Foreign basketball in Shanghai got a good start for the season at the meeting held at the Rowing Club Wednesday evening, as reported in THE CHINA PRESS yesterday. At this meeting the representatives of various groups in Shanghai interested in basketball met and discussed plans for the coming season, which promises very well. Among other things, some interport matches are looked forward to, with Hankow and possibly some other teams.

Dr. J. H. Gray, Hon. Sec. of the Far Eastern Contest Committee, was elected President of the Foreign Basketball League at Wednesday's meeting, the vote being unanimous.

The following matters have yet to be arranged before the beginning of play on December 1:

A second meeting is to be held at 5:30 p.m. at the Rowing Club on Wednesday, the 19th of November, at which it is desired that representatives from all the teams participating shall be present.

Either at that meeting or (preferably) before, each team manager or captain is to send to Dr. J. H. Gray, 20 Museum Road, elected to carry on the work of the league until the above called meeting, a list of the players that are to represent that team this season. This in order that there shall be no conflict over players between different teams.

Each team is to nominate, if possible, one representative who will be willing to act as a duly appointed official or referee for the games of the league.

A governing Committee will be appointed for the season at the meeting on November 19, to be selected from representatives of the teams participating. Also there is the possible organisation of a Basketball Association for Shanghai, which if started should arrange for Interport matches, etc., in the usual way.

The league is to start its games on December 1. It is hoped that an eight team league may be organised, but it is recognised that six teams that will play through will be better. The League would be pleased to hear from the Public School, and from the Korean and Canadian National Groups, as soon as they are able to say whether they can enter a team or not.

Further information can be obtained from Dr. J. H. Gray, Hon. Secretary, 20 Museum Road. Foreigners interested in basketball, but not connected with any athletic association, are urged to get in touch with the Secretary and locate with some team here.

ROWING CLUB ACTIVE

Members of the Shanghai Rowing Club will be interested to learn that the Club Basketball floor is now open to use and that Basketball will be played every evening. The floor is in excellent condition, new baskets have been affixed, and generally conditions are favorable for a bumper season for this popular indoor sport. It is hoped to have sufficient men on the floor every evening to make possible at least one pick-up game, and novices particularly are invited to put in an appearance, when they will be coached to a knowledge of the game.

Outdoor sport is precluded during the dark winter evenings, so that basketball, played in the Club's well lighted and ventilated Gymnasium, should prove an excellent substitute. It is hoped to enter at least two teams from the Club in the Foreign League this year, and all candidates for places in these teams are urged to put in as much practice as possible. Games commence at 5:30 every evening.

Running away with it!

WHEN the "favorite" really hits his stride, it's all over but the shouting. And in a race for sales it's the same story.

Months ago, Chesterfield hit its stride. And it has set a record-breaking pace ever since—gaining more and more smokers every day.

Chesterfield has won its present position because men know by its taste that here is clean-cut superiority of tobaccos and blend.

Such popularity must be deserved
